MÉTIS NATION OF ONTARIO 2020 ELECTION

Margaret Froh Re-Elected as MNO President

unning on a platform of rights, results and community, Margaret Froh was re-elected as President of the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) for a second term of office on June 1, 2020. President Froh was elected along with provincial and regional leadership representing the rights and interests of communities and citizens throughout Ontario. This election boasted a very healthy display of democracy with almost all of the positions on the Provisional Council of the MNO (PCMNO) contested. At the same time elections were held for positions within the MNO Veterans’ Council and Youth Council.

While the COVID-19 pandemic prompted the cancellation of in-person voting by the Chief Electoral Officer and required that candidates engage the electorate in innovative ways, there was still solid voter participation. Fortunately, the MNO had already been working to introduce new technologies including the use of telephone and online voting options for the 2020 MNO election. The Chief Electoral Officer worked with One Feather, an Indigenous election services company that specializes in web-based and telephone voting, to ensure that MNO electors would have every opportunity to exercise their right to vote.

The safety and security of MNO citizens, families, and communities in this difficult time is our single most important priority,” stated President Froh. “So, I want to thank all the candidates, our electoral officials and staff, and the volunteers who assisted the various campaigns for their determination and unwavering belief in our democratic process.”

During her first term, President Froh and the PCMNO secured the groundbreaking Métis Government Recognition and Self-Government Agreement that sets a new government-to-government relationship between Canada and MNO.

“I am deeply honoured and humbled to receive this second mandate. I extend my congratulations to the newly elected and returning members of the PCMNO and look forward to working with each and every one and indeed with all our communities and citizens to continue the momentum we have created together,” stated President Froh.

“Those PCMNO members that will not be returning, the MNO thanks you for your years of service. You have helped us all along the path to self-government, a remarkable achievement – we would not be here without you! And thank you to everyone who put their names forward as a candidate; discussing different points of view and debating the future is what our democracy is all about,” declared President Froh.

“By working together, the MNO has been able to accomplish so much over the last 27 years, but our work is far from over. Now, it is the time for all of us to stand together in order to continue our collective fight for rights, uphold and advance the MNO Statement of Prime Purpose, and keep moving forward for our future generations.”

I want to extend greetings to MNO staff, citizens, community and advisory council leadership, our Captains of the Hunt and to the entire Provisional Council of the MNO. I am deeply humbled and extremely enthused to be continuing to work with all of you to advance the MNO’s Statement of Prime Purpose and its vision of Métis self-determination. There will be much to do during this second mandate; I am committed and thrilled to be rolling up my sleeves to help move us forward. I wish to extend my congratulations to the new PCMNO who bring so much experience and knowledge to this work. I look forward to working with each and every one of you -- and indeed with all our communities and citizens -- to continue the momentum we have created together.

I want to thank everyone who put their names forward as candidates and those who exercised their democratic right to vote. The ability for us to discuss and debate key issues and share and work through our different points of view is what makes our democracy all about. Our continued growth and development as a government requires that we continue to respectfully engage our citizens and make way for fresh ideas and the leaders of tomorrow to take their place within the MNO.

Thank you to departing PCMNO

To those PCMNO members who have not returned to office, the MNO extends sincere thanks for your years of service. You have helped us all along the path to self-government -- a remarkable achievement. We would not be here without you!

The MNO has been able to accomplish much over the last 27 years by working together, but our work is far from over. Now is the time for all of us to stand together to continue our collective fight for rights, uphold and advance the MNO Statement of Prime Purpose, and keep moving forward for our future generations.

Transparency and accountability

The PCMNO has a very busy agenda ahead and has already held three weekend sessions to provide orientation on the important business of MNO, and move forward on several key decisions. We will continue to host leadership telephone town halls after every PCMNO meeting to provide updates about those meetings and related decisions, as well as provide updates on the MNO website. We continue to look to technology to help create further transparency and accountability, and look forward to hosting a Citizens’ Town Hall this fall in advance of our first-ever virtual Annual General Assembly on November 7, 2020.

Continuing on the Path to Self-Government

During the next 4 years and well into the future we will all be working together to advance our ancestors’ dream of self-government and self-determination. There are several steps we must take to move this work forward and it will require extensive discussions in communities, with families and youth in every area of the Province. We will need to stay focused and use all communication tools available in order to invite the diversity of Métis voices throughout Ontario. Expect to hear much more about this work in the coming months.

MNO in the time of COVID-19

This has not been a typical summer for any of us. As we have been managing our way through the COVID-19 pandemic we have had to re-envision our relationships and our way of coming together in community. I want to acknowledge the amazing strength and resilience that continues to be demonstrated, time and again, by the MNO’s communities, citizens and employees.

Margaret Froh, President
Métis Nation of Ontario

Over the last many months, we have come together to support each other as we navigate these new realities. As the serious threat of COVID-19 emerged, MNO staff made swift, deliberate and informed decisions to mobilize all programs and move all staff to remote work. Our Métis government public service has not only continued to provide almost all of its existing services during COVID-19, it also developed and implemented timely new programs to support our families and communities through these challenging times.

The PCMNO and MNO’s leadership at all levels have shown incredible foresight and commitment to prioritize and support the MNO’s COVID-19 response, and the MNO will continue to evolve and adapt our support programs and services in response to the evolving needs of our citizens. At the community level we have witnessed the tireless dedication of so many community Councils and citizens that have taken such initiative to reach out to families and citizens and provide the support where it is needed. On behalf of the entire Provincial Council, we thank you.

The MNO’s ongoing response to the pandemic has been truly impressive. We know that when times are difficult our Métis spirit shines bright and we will join together in the best interests of the health and well-being of our citizens, families and employees.

Métis Nation of Ontario

MNO moving forward for future Métis generations

I am deeply humbled and extremely enthused to be continuing to work with all of you to advance the MNO’s Statement of Prime Purpose and vision of Métis self-determination.
The economic and health care uncertainty brought on by the worldwide COVID-19 pandemic has seen many Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) citizens finding themselves in need of additional support. The MNO has always maintained that the health, safety and wellbeing of its citizens is paramount and is working tirelessly to provide that assistance. In just a few short weeks, the MNO created a series of new COVID-19 Emergency Financial Support programs to assemble support over 1300 citizens with that number increasing every day. The Emergency Response Team is made up of over 50 MNO staff members pulled from various branches across the MNO. This team, created in just four weeks, has developed a structured and speedy approach to applications received from MNO citizens in need. While all of MNO offices remained closed, the MNO team is still hard at work reaching out to our most vulnerable citizens, asking how they are coping during the worldwide pandemic and assisting them with anything they may need — including how to apply for Emergency Support programs. The Emergency Response Team has been processing applicants and assessing their needs. This includes evaluating the types and levels of financial support needed, or if they can be helped by MNO’s existing supports such as housing, education support advocates, mental health and even business and self-employment support through the Métis Voyageur Development Fund. This is all on top of their regular duties within the MNO. “Our dedicated frontline staff have stepped up as they always do,” said MNO President Margaret Froh. “I’m very proud of our professional team to get the job done, all while keeping the regular MNO programs and services running with minimal disruption.” The COVID-19 Emergency Response Team has been successful due to its organized structure and mobilization of effective leaders. People Leaders were established across the MNO’s many branches to provide direction to their staff, while operating under the advice of COVID Team Leaders. “When I was first assigned to do the work I felt overwhelmed with all the steps required,” said Jacqueline Bouchard, a member of the COVID Emergency Response Team. “After a few meetings with my People Leader and the COVID Team Leader I realized I could rise up to the challenge after all I’m used to helping people, it’s what I do best and our citizens need help,” said Jacqueline. “The people I’ve called are happy to hear from me and are grateful for the assistance from the MNO. I have received many emails thanking the COVID-19 team for all of their help.” At this time, the MNO has added in the support of over 1400 Métis citizens and 736 children, including many with special needs. Over 1800 individual files have been received as of mid-summer, with more requests coming in daily. Funding provided by the government of Canada and the Government of Ontario have been and will continue to be distributed through this program. Canada provided $3.75 billion and Ontario provided $100,000 respectively. A further $26 million has been provided for Indigenous peoples and communities, including emergency assistance for urban Indigenous people in financial need. “The spread of COVID-19 requires the focus and collaboration of all governments. The Métis Nation of Ontario is working bilaterally with the Government of Canada and the Government of Ontario to collaborate on our collective response. We are appreciative of both governments’ commitment to work with the Métis Nation of Ontario during this challenging time, and the acknowledgment that more funds will be needed as we continue to deliver support,” added the MNO President. The MNO has also continued its close collaboration with the Métis Nation - Saskatchewan (MNS) and the Métis Nation of Alberta (MNA) during this time, specifically working with MNA to secure Personal Protective Equipment and MN-S to collaborate on Mental Health Services. While financial support has been an integral part of the MNO’s response to COVID-19, we have also provided help in other ways for our citizens in need. This includes but is not limited to: access to medical appointments; care-giving needs; dealing with food insecurity, housework, legal advice; and loss of income. Nearly all of the regular MNO programs and services are still available and MNO citizens who are in need of assistance can still apply to the COVID-19 Emergency Financial Support Programs (https://covid.metisnation.org). Citizens are asked to contact our toll-free line at 1-800-263-4889 or email covidhelp@metisnation.org. Updates at www.metisnation.org/covid-19. As of now, these supports are only available to our citizens who reside in Ontario, if you are an MNO who lives outside of the province, please contact the email and phone number above.

Margaret Froh has been re-elected to the Provisional Council of the Métis Nation of Ontario (PCMNO) and returns to serve her second term as President. Margaret joined the staff of the MNO in 2015 as in-house legal counsel and Director of Strategic Policy, Law and Compliance. Prior to her election as President, she served as the MNO’s Associate Chief Operating Officer.

Highlights of her first term as President of the MNO include the signing of four key agreements. First, securing the April 2018 Framework Agreement on Métis Harvesting and eliminating the cap on harvesters certificates. In December 2017, she signed two framework agreements—one with Canada and Ontario on advancing reconciliation for the entirety of the MNO, and the other with the MNO’s Northwestern Ontario Métis Community and Canada to advance reconciliation for outstanding historical grievances of that regional community regarding the broken Crown promises in the Half-Breed Adhesion to Treaty 3. And in June 2019, she signed the historic and ground-breaking core Métis Self-Government Agreement between the MNO and the federal government alongside Métis leadership from Alberta and Saskatchewan, making history and ushering in a new era for Métis rights and recognition.

As President, she will continue her mandate to advance Métis rights in Ontario, support strong MNO’s communities, and yield tangible results on key priorities, including Métis Self-Government, to benefit MNO’s Citizens and communities.

Throughout her career, Margaret has used her legal skills to advocate on behalf of Indigenous communities and has demonstrated great success in building and maintaining productive relationships across all types of organizations and levels of government. Prior to joining the MNO, Margaret was part of the in-house legal counsel group with an Ontario First Nation government, and she also served at Aboriginal Issues Coordinator for the Law Society of Upper Canada and established a formal and lasting partnership between the Law Society and the MNO, which included the first joint MNO-LSO Louis Red Elk event—a tradition that continues to this day.

Margaret has served on a variety of committees and advisory groups with a focus on access to justice for Indigenous peoples in Ontario. As a former President of the Indigenous Bar Association (IBA) in Canada, she chaired many of the IBAs internal committees and engaged her skills and legal experience to benefit the association’s extensive network of Métis, First Nations, and Inuit lawyers, judges, professionals and students across Canada.

With experience as faculty at both the Bailliff Centre and the University of Toronto Faculty of Law, Margaret has served as a mentor to many Indigenous leaders and students over the years and is a strong advocate for youth mental health supports.

Originally from the Qu’Appelle Valley in Saskatchewan, Margaret moved to Ontario in 1995 to attend law school at the University of Toronto and has since made Ontario her home. She and her spouse, Rachel Osborne, currently reside in Barrie, within the traditional territory of the historic Georgian Bay Métis Community.

Hannah Bazinet joins the PCMNO for the first time as the Post-Secondary Representative. Currently a Masters student at Western University in London, Hannah is enrolled in a Medical Biophysics program with plans to pursue a professional degree upon completion. Having been a post-secondary student the last 5 years, Hannah is acutely aware of the needs and considerations facing post-secondary Métis students and is excited to represent students on the PCMNO level. Hannah has been an MNO Infinite Reach facilitator for over two years.

Hannah plays an active role in the post-secondary Indigenous community and has fostered a strong relationship with her Western University’s Indigenous Centre. As a student representative, Hannah has attended conferences across Canada where she has had the opportunity to engage with and listen to numerous Indigenous students. First Nations, Inuit and Métis. These discussions have allowed her to have open dialogue about lived experiences, and brainstorm ways to unite our communities through mutual understanding and conversation.

Hannah looks forward to representing the voice of post-secondary students when approaching PCMNO’s goals on community building, and constitution building. She is committed to ensuring safe spaces for students to raise concerns and to learn about our history and culture, and believes it is through community building that we can truly understand what it means to be Métis.

Many thanks to departing PCMNO & Advisory Council Members

The cornerstone of the Métis Nation of Ontario’s (MNO) democratic process is holding fair and open, province-wide elections every four years. This is a fundamental part of MNO’s governance. MNO Citizens exercise their right to vote and select the representatives that will serve on the Provisional Council of the MNO (PCMNO) as well as the MNO Women’s Council, MNO Youth Council and MNO Veterans’ Council.

The MNO citizens that have stepped up to serve over the past 27 years are to be commended for their contributions to upholding the MNO Statement of Prime Purpose and advancing Métis rights. Every MNO Election results in change, while critical to the exercise of democracy, this can also be bittersweet. This last MNO Election did result in many longstanding PCMNO and Advisory Council members moving on from their leadership roles. The MNO wants to acknowledge and extend sincere gratitude to all.

Specifically we did want to acknowledge the contributions of these departing PCMNO members following the 2020 Election: Françoise Picotte; Tim Pile; Marcel Lafreniere; Lee Rivet; Anita Tucker; and Katelyn LaCroix.

We wish you the best as you move into new roles and opportunities and welcome your experience and voice as we start to build a constitution and continue to advance self-government.

"This conference is born out of a relationship that our three governments, the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO), Métis Nation of Alberta (MNA), and Métis Nation-Saskatchewan (MNS), have created as a means of moving forward in a positive way with advancing self-determination and self-government for our people," said MNO President Margaret Froh.

On June 27, 2019, the Métis Governments of Ontario, Saskatchewan, and Alberta each signed Métis Government Recognition and Self-Government Agreements with Canada. The Self-Government Agreements provide for Canada’s immediate recognition of the inherent right to self-government held by the Métis communities and citizens represented by each Métis Government. This is the first time that Canada has ever recognized an inherent right of self-government for Métis.

"We have always known and asserted that we are Métis governments," said MNA President Audrey Poitras. "We do not worry there will be many opportunities and many different ways to ensure we own ourselves. And that means a lot, it means to be able to own your life to be able to exercise our rights as Métis," said President McCallum. "The traditional and democratic self-government structure of the Métis Nation-Saskatchewan has been practiced and built since the days of Louis Riel. This government structure needs to be understood, respected, and practiced. This conference represented an opportunity for our federal partners to hear from us, in our own words, about our Métis rights and self-government."

The Otipemisiwak conference brought together a diversity of voices including, Representatives from the Tłı́chǫ Government (NTF) and Ke:ya: Ḵe:y̱e:ł̱e:y̱e First Nations (BC) negotiation teams who shared their experiences negotiating modern day treaties and self-government. The invaluable voices of Métis Youth were also in the spotlight.

First-Ever National Conference on Métis Self-Government concludes with a commitment to progress

WE ARE HERE! The Métis Nation of Ontario Self-Government conversations are starting. Talk to your Regional Councillor, Community Council, find out when the next conversation in your region is going to be. If you miss one, do not worry there will be many opportunities and many different ways to ensure that your voice is heard.

Since 1993 when the MNO was established one of our fundamental priorities has been advancing to our goal of Métis Self-Government in Ontario. With the signing of the Métis Government Recognition and Self-Government Agreement (MGRSA) the door has been opened and we are ready to walk through – yet there is a lot of work ahead that we must do together.

In 2018 the MNO released the Advancing Métis Rights and Self-Government What We Heard report from meetings in 2017 with all MNO Communities (www.metisnation.org/news-media/news-what-we-heard-1). These are just some of the ideas and thoughts that will need to be refined and brought forward to begin work on a constitution, develop laws and transition from a not-for-profit to a fully recognized Métis Government.

In an effort to streamline questions, inquiries and follow up we have created a dedicated email: Self.Government@metisnation.org

The next steps in this journey will require the commitment of leadership at every level coming together with communities and citizens to make this dream a reality.

There will be extensive engagement and consultation with citizens throughout Ontario.
The MNO movement for masks

The Métis people have long been celebrated for their artistry, creativity and the ability to make the most of limited resources in challenging times. In the face of the current COVID-19 pandemic, some Métis citizens have been setting aside their beadwork, finger-weaving, and embroidery in favour of a new, much needed, project – mask-making.

What began as a few MNO citizens from communities ranging from Kenora to Hamilton and Bowmanville sewing masks on their own volition, has evolved into a coordinated, province wide effort.

The movement for masks has been greatly successful, approximately 400 masks have been created so far and hundreds more are in the works. Suzanne Jackson, Region 9 Representative for the Métis Nation of Ontario Women’s Council (MNOWC) has been assisting with the coordination of the efforts, organizing orders for sewing kits and recruiting volunteers.

“We’d like to hear from citizens, who have, or knows somebody who has, a sewing machine and can dedicate a couple of days to make up one package of masks. A single kit would add an additional 14 masks to our efforts,” she shared. “Once the masks are completed there may be a need to have them delivered to our citizens and their families.”

Even community partners have been contributing. The Almaguin Quilters Guild has volunteered their time and are set to produce 200 masks to be shared within the Métis community. The MNOWC is also seeking more skilled sewers to help create gowns. Gowns require more proficiency with fabric and the use of a serger – a specialized type of sewing machine. Those willing to assist with mask- or gown-making are encouraged to request a kit by contacting their local MNO Community Council Women’s Representative or MNOWC Regional Representative. The materials will be shipped to their address. Once completed, arrangements can be made with the Rep to ensure the masks reach their destinations. All contact information for Representatives is available on the MNO website. If you are unsure who to contact, please email Suzanne Jackson at suzannejWSMNO2016@gmail.com.

Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Community Councils are finding amazing, community-focused ways to use funds provided during the COVID-19 pandemic to support their citizens.

The Great Lakes Métis Council received $5,000 as part of the MNO’s COVID-19 Emergency Financial Support programs funding.

The Great Lakes Métis Council also received some financial support from local proponents such as Bruce Power and Nuclear Waste Management Organization (NWMO). With these funds the Council purchased two full-butchered cows.

According to the council, this was done to include fresh meat as part of care packages for citizens in need. The packages were delivered to more than 100 MNO citizens that were negatively affected by the pandemic. The packages included carrots, potatoes, onions, canned goods and cleaning supplies as well as the beef.

Community successes like this deserve to be highlighted as councils across the MNO are stepping up to help their citizens who are the most in need.

MNO Great Lakes Métis Council gives back during Covid-19 Pandemic

When Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) citizen and President of the Atikokan and Area Métis Council Marlene Davidson learned she had been selected for the Influential Women of Northern Ontario Award she literally could not believe it.

“My initial thought was that someone might have been fooling around,” Davidson explains. “Then they confirmed, ‘Yes this is for sure’. But because I’m so busy, I found I needed time to process it before it truly sunk in.”

The Influential Women of Northern Ontario Award recognizes outstanding community and regional accomplishments of local women. Davidson was honoured for her contributions to economic growth and the bettering of her community.

Davidson has long been a champion for women’s rights, having personally founded the Women in Mining (WIM) program to encourage higher representation of women in the traditionally male-dominated industry.

“Women can truly do anything,” she explains. “And that’s what I support. We want to see more women involved in mining, especially in the Treaty 3 area. And we see a lot of strong Métis women excel in these roles, because they’re dedicated and extremely hard workers.”

But according to Davidson, mining is just a small part of what needs to be done: “We really need to promote our culture and everything else that goes with us. It’s something that I came to late in life. But I believe we find out who we are every day. It never leaves us once we find out,” she says.

This desire to tap into her Métis ancestry while building community is what motivated Davidson to charter her local MNO Council, that originated in a mall basement more than ten years ago.

“We’ve moved to a new office these days,” she says. “But many of our council’s current members have been there since the beginning. Together we’ve made some really phenomenal strides, including our recent efforts towards future self-governance.”

Davidson’s is regularly involved in an array of diverse projects that she believes will better the community from chartering the Atikokan’s Children’s Entertainment Series, to serving more than 40 years as the chair and “keeper of the library.” Davidson is also a key figure on the local hospital board.

“I believe leadership means doing things you really believe in,” she explains. “I believe in libraries because they are equalizers in communities, the knowledge is there for people. And children, especially in small communities, need spaces they can go for learning, for experiences and entertainment—like dance or music or theatre. Finally, everyone deserves good healthcare.”

MNO citizen Marlene Davidson receives leadership award
In the early nineteenth century, the northern shore of St. Mary’s River was home to a thriving Métis community. The community remained strong even as settlement threatened their ancestral lands.

Métis had occupied the riverfront for generations and relied on their environment for fishing, farming, hunting, and trading. Land was divided using the seigneurial system of New France, with long narrow lots ending at the river. This system, also used by Métis in Red River, allowed each family to have access to the water, which was a necessity not only for farming and livestock, but transportation as well.

Despite the Métis community’s long occupation of these lots, their claim to the land was ignored when the area was opened for settlement in the 1840s. The community mobilized, petitioning the government for protection. Métis reminded the government that they had been “born upon the soil” and requested free land grants that would allow them to keep their homes. They were unsuccessful.

Without grants, Métis were expected to buy back their own lots. But the arrival of settlers, land speculators, and resource companies sent land prices soaring, and most families were unable to afford the cost. Over time, they were evicted from their land, forced to move to town or First Nations reserves. Six Métis households managed to keep their original plots, but saw the size reduced to that of a standard municipal lot.

In spite of this, Métis continued to pursue fishing, hunting, trapping, and harvesting on their traditional territory. Families maintained their close connections through intermarriage and witnessing each other’s important life events—bonds that continued to strengthen the distinct and vibrant character of the community.

Métis had occupied the riverfront for generations and relied on their environment for fishing, farming, hunting, and trading. 1850 Petition
Fifty-five Métis heads of household signed this petition, arguing that they too were entitled to the land being surrendered under the Robinson Treaties because they were “born upon the soil” and “held, occupied, and cultivated the land” for many years.

Fishing in St. Mary’s Rapids
Losing their river lots limited Métis families’ access to St. Mary’s Rapids, where they used nets and scoops to harvest whitefish for food and commerce.

Map of River Lots
Unlike the English system which used square townships to divide land, providing only some people with access to the water, the river lot system gave each family river access and fertile soil to maintain small gardens and cultivate oats, potatoes, and corn.

Heroic actions of MNO citizen saves Ottawa man’s life

Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) citizen and Special Constable Susanne Kelly was awarded the Ottawa Police Chief’s Commendation for heroic actions that saved the life of a local man in December 2019.

While on patrol, Kelly and her partner, Special Constable Michael Bednarek, encountered a distressed citizen urgently waving the pair down. Panning over, the two witnessed an apparent suicide attempt in action, a local man had scaled a nearby bridge railing and was preparing to make a fatal jump.

Kelly was credited for her quick-thinking by utilizing available tools which secured the individual, while her partner engaged in conversation with the man, ultimately saving his life through their combined efforts.

The Chief’s Commendation is awarded to those whom have demonstrated “over the course of a single investigation, operation or incident outstanding skill, judgement, dedication or integrity in the performance of duty.” The MNO also praises the actions of Special Constables Kelly and Bednarek and congratulates them on their well-deserved recognition.

Special Constable Susanne Kelly (centre) received the Ottawa Police Chief’s Commendation for lifesaving actions last year.

MNO Citizen appointed to Board of Museum of Science and Technology

From a young age, MNO citizen Matthew Lafrenière knew he wanted a career in the sciences. Having received his PhD in Chemistry and a professorship in the subject at University of Ottawa, it’s safe to say this goal was realized. Matthew’s ambitions went a step further when he became a Board of Trustee member at Ingenium Canada, the overseeing organization which manages Ottawa’s three science-oriented museums – including the National Museum of Science and Technology, Canadian Aviation Space Museum and the Museum of Agriculture.

Growing up in Penetanguishene, Matthew had an ambition to build a network of like-minded Métis and Indigenous youth and support them in realizing their academic and professional goals. He founded an organization for Indigenous people in science and engineering in 2017. As a former MNO Infinite Reach Facilitator, Matthew recognized the value in building such networks.

“One of the great things about Infinite Reach was that it created connections between Métis students across Ontario and encouraged engagement from other Métis university students so that they might build more informal personal networks,” he describes.

“I think one of the biggest obstacles Indigenous youth face [in academic and professional pursuits] is a lack of mentorship,” he describes. “A lot of First Nation, Métis and Inuit come from lower socio-economic backgrounds and often lack the resources, support and networks. What I wanted to do was provide a space for students to ask specific questions about research or scholarships.”

Matthew’s commitment to increasing Indigenous representation is not limited to just STEM. He aspires to bring these values to his new appointment as a Trustee for Ingenium Canada, where he will assist in the overseeing and management of three museums: Canadian Aviation Space Museum, Museum of Science and Technology and the Museum of Agriculture. He believes bringing a different, Métis perspective, to the position was one of the strengths as an applicant.

Part of Matthew’s new objectives includes indigenousizing elements of the museum content to highlight a more Indigenous facet to sciences. He also believes having more Indigenous content in these institutions and spaces will appeal to Indigenous youth and encourage them to pursue an education in hard sciences.

“One way to encourage students in STEM is having them see their voices and faces and experiences within Canada’s STEM culture, and you can do that through museums.” He explains. “Museums embody our successes, and our failures, and these three museums have a wonderful opportunity to do that, to highlight the contributions Indigenous Canadians have had towards innovation within Canadian culture and STEM.”

Together we will #PowerON

Ontario Power Generation (OPG) produces about half of the electricity Ontarians rely on every day. Our power is clean, reliable and costs an average of 40% less than other generators.

Through the COVID-19 crisis, OPG has been helping to keep the lights on across the province, for homes, care facilities and hospitals. To help address the pandemic’s human impact, OPG has provided financial support to food banks across the province – including $10,000 to Region 7 of the Métis Nation of Ontario – and donated 1 million surgical masks and other equipment to the health-care system.

OPG understands its responsibilities to safety and the environment. With 66 hydroelectric stations, 241 dams on 24 river systems, and four owned nuclear stations (two of them leased to Bruce Power), OPG values the well-being of its employees and their communities above all else.

OPG is committed to building and growing long-term, mutually beneficial working relationships with Métis and First Nations communities near our current and future operations in Ontario, in keeping with our Indigenous Relations Policy, posted online at www.opg.com.

Today, two-thirds of Ontario’s electricity comes from nuclear energy, which emits virtually no carbon. This makes nuclear power a vital tool in the fight against climate change.

Nuclear energy produces a byproduct, radioactive waste, which OPG handles with care. Its Nuclear Waste Management division has “three pillars”:

- Stewardship - We manage the waste thoughtfully and carefully.
- Lasting Solutions - We are developing plans for permanent disposal, to protect people and the environment forever.
- Peace of Mind - We meet or exceed all regulatory requirements, so that Ontarians can enjoy the benefits of clean nuclear energy without worry.

OPG and its employees thank everyone who has helped tackle the COVID-19 challenge, from health-care workers to those who, at the height of the crisis, simply stayed at home, observed social distancing and did their part to move the province toward recovery.

At OPG, we are doing our part – and together we will #PowerON.
Protecting Métis rights and way of life

The Canadian nuclear industry supports over 60,000 Canadian jobs and provides approximately 58% of Ontario’s electricity. Canada’s nuclear industry also provides radioisotopes for medical imaging and radiation sources for cancer therapies. While the nuclear industry provides benefits, some Métis citizens have concerns about how the industry could affect their rights and way of life. The Métis Nation of Ontario, through its Regional Consultation Committees and supported by the Lands, Resources, and Consultation Branch, continues to consult and engage in dialogue with the nuclear industry and regulators on a wide range of proposed and ongoing nuclear projects and initiatives throughout Ontario to protect Métis rights and way of life.

In the last two years, the Lands, Resources, and Consultations Branch has significantly increased its capacity to support continued consultation and engagement with Ontario’s nuclear industry and its regulator. The Lands, Resources, and Consultations staff work to review plans, policies and projects with the potential to impact Métis rights and way of life in areas where Regional Consultation Protocols are established and advice and support the relevant Regional Consultation Committees.

Under these protocols, the Regional Consultation Committees identify where consultation is required, and, if so, how consultation should take place. Land, Resources, and Consultation staff then work to review and analyze documents, arrange meetings, community information sessions, traditional knowledge and land use studies, third party reviews, and negotiations as needed.

Through this process, the MNO’s Regional Consultation Committees have signed agreements with Canadian Nuclear Laboratories, Bruce Power, Ontario Power Generation, the Canadian Nuclear Safety Commission, and the Nuclear Waste Management Organization to support engagement and consultation on Nuclear projects and operations.

The MNO values the Métis Nation of Ontario’s (MNO) involvement in Canada’s Plan. Since 2010, we have engaged with MNO citizens by attending MNO Annual General Assemblies and hosting information sessions across the province to answer questions and learn from Métis communities.

Dialogue with communities is central to the work we do to advance Canada’s plan. As the sitting process advances, we have broadened and deepened our engagement activities. Most recently, we executed capacity agreements with MNO Region 1 and MNO Region 7 that resulted in Traditional Knowledge and Land Use Studies, meetings with regional Consultation Committees, and meaningful dialogue with Métis citizens. Additionally, the NWMO has supported numerous MNO community cultural events as well as a Youth/Elder Knowledge Exchange.

As we continue to chart a steady course toward the identification of a preferred site for a deep geological repository, the NWMO looks to strengthen its relationship with the MNO—and now into the future.

We are Canada’s Nuclear Regulator

As an agent of the Government of Canada and as Canada’s nuclear regulator, the Canadian Nuclear Safety Commission (CNSC) recognizes and understands the importance of consulting and building relationships with First Nations, Métis and Inuit in Canada, including the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO).

CNSC’s Mandate:
- protecting the health, safety and security of Canadians
- protecting the environment
- coordinating objective scientific, technical and regulatory information to the public
- ensuring the peaceful use of nuclear materials in Canada and abroad
- committing to meaningful consultation and engagement with Indigenous communities, including through collaborating on incorporating Indigenous Knowledge and ensuring nuclear activities are not adversely impacting the rights of Indigenous peoples

The CNSC regulates all nuclear activities in Canada including:
- Uranium mining
- Nuclear power plants
- Nuclear waste management
- Research
- Medical applications
- Transport of radioactive substances

How we regulate and ensure safety

Before anyone can undertake a nuclear activity or project in Canada, they must first apply to the CNSC for a licence. The independent Commission Tribunal evaluates every licence application and holds public hearings to hear from all interested Canadians to ensure that all required measures are in place to protect the health of Canadians and the environment before making a decision to grant a licence for a nuclear project or activity. Even after a licence is given, CNSC staff continue to monitor by:

Bruce Power has worked collaboratively with the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) to fully understand MNO issues and concerns and over the years our relationship with Region 7 Georgian Bay Traditional Territory Consultation Committee (GBTTCC) has grown and flourished. We consider this to be a strong and productive partnership and are extremely proud of it.

We have been working jointly with MNO to develop an environmental monitoring plan. Based on ongoing dialogue, this monitoring plan will include a review and evaluation of MNO valued components and areas of concern and development of a monitoring plan for areas and species of interest related to thermal discharges. The plan will then be implemented and an adaptive management approach applied for continuous improvement. A process has been developed to communicate thermal compliance events with MNO.

COVID 19 Supports
We’re here for you

We are living in unprecedented times and it is important that Métis citizens can continue to count on Bruce Power to provide the electricity needs to power its hospitals, health-care facilities, clinics, and communities across Ontario. It is also important that the local MNO communities can continue to count on us to support the many programs that rely on Bruce Power support. Our Indigenous Community Investment Fund is geared towards supporting initiatives and projects within the local Indigenous communities. Over the years, we have supported a number of MNO projects and initiatives that range from cultural activities to youth programming. Over the past few months, we have been working very closely with MNO Region 7 leadership and providing them the flexibility to redirect those funds into areas that they’re designating as a high priority to fight COVID-19. In addition to this, we have provided PPE and hand sanitizer to assist those front line workers serving the MNO community.

Bruce Power has been a strong community partner as evidenced by our gold certification in the Progressive Aboriginal Relations (PAR) program. The program is a certification program that confirms corporate performance in Aboriginal relations and is the flagship program of the Canadian Council for Aboriginal Business (CCAB).

Medical Isotopes

For more than 30 years, the four reactors at Bruce Power’s Breez B generating station have been a reliable Cobalt-60 supply for Nordion, an Ottawa-based company. Bruce Power’s Cobalt-60 helps to sterilize 40 per cent of the world’s single-use medical devices, including sutures, syringes, masks, gloves and more. Bruce Power also produces medical-grade Cobalt-60 that is used in radiation-based cancer treatments, as well as other diseases in Canada and around the world.

The medical isotopes supplied by Bruce Power are vital resources to the medical community, and the company continues to seek ways to expand the types of isotopes it produces. An agreement signed in 2019 brought together Bruce Power, Kinectrics and Framatome with a group of biotechnology and radiopharmaceutical companies to collaborate on establishing Ontario as a global hub for medical isotopes including research, development, production, processing and export.

By joining forces with the health care sector and research facilities, nuclear energy producers like Bruce Power can continue delivering life-saving medical isotopes to hospitals around the world – improving the quality of life of millions of people in the process.

Four of Bruce Power’s reactors produce Cobalt-60, an isotope which helps to sterilize 40 per cent of the world’s medical devices, and treat complex forms of cancer – including brain tumours – through non-invasive procedures like the Gamma Knife.

As we continue to find ways to leverage our reactors in producing isotopes, we are excited about the production of Lutetium-177, a key isotope used to treat prostate cancer. The production is expected to be enabled at Bruce Power as soon as 2022 thanks to a partnership with Framatome to advance this innovative project.

Tri-Council cooperation results in Joint Declaration

A historic meeting of the Métis Governments of Ontario, Alberta and Saskatchewan took place in Edmonton, AB in January 2020. The meeting marked the first time elected representatives of the Métis Nation of Ontario, the Métis Nation of Alberta (MNA), and the Métis Nation-Saskatchewan (MNS) have assembled together since signing Métis Government Recognition and Self-Government Agreement (MGRSA) with Canada in June 2019. Increasingly the MNO, MNA, and MNS have been working together to advance common interests trilaterally and to develop shared solutions to advance reconciliation, self-governance, and community well-being.

Métis citizens aspire to become fiddle aficionados

The Toronto and York Métis Council (TYMC) completed a six-session workshop on Métis Fiddling in October 2019. Led by Alicia Blore, Education Officer at the MNO, and with fiddles provided by the TYMC and the Oshawa and Durham Métis Council, the aspiring fiddlers began with weekly, hour-long classes. Blore gave a history of the fiddle and its ties to Métis culture before moving on to technical aspects. Fiddlers learned to identify parts of the bow and fiddle, the proper form, how to read sheet music, and more.

“For some participants, this is the first time they’ve even held a fiddle. It’s been amazing to see how far they’ve come in just six weeks,” Blore explained.

Windsor workshop honours victims of residential schools

The Windsor Essex Kent Métis Community Council (WEKMCC), along with MNO staff held a special beading workshop in their community to honour Orange Shirt Day in September 2019. The workshop was led by Marie Pasquatch and Kat of Culture Shock jewelry who instructed participants to make orange bracelets and pins to encourage conversations about the importance of Orange Shirt Day and the impact of Residential Schools.

“I have seen firsthand how our early learners and their families have been engaged and inspired by the cultural programs and activities,” said Marie Pasquatch, Education Officer at the MNO. “It’s been a joy to see how much they’ve learned and how much fun they’ve had.”

Fun in the sun at Camp Kitchikewana

Last summer 27 intrepid members of the Georgian Bay Métis (GBMC) Youth Council (MNOVC) with President Brian Black extended an invitation to President David Chartrand of the Manitoba Métis Federation to present a cheque of $20,000 to the GEOMC Youth Council camp offers youth ages 5 to 15 the opportunity to experience traditional Métis culture and way-of-life first hand. Camp Kitchikewana is a YMCA run camp inside the Georgian Bay Islands National Park. For the ninth year in a row the camp brought together Indigenous youth from around Georgian Bay, Muskoka, Parry Sound, Gravenhurst, and the surrounding areas.

World War II Métis Veteran William Hurteau received thanks from the Métis Nation, a $20,000 Recognition Payment and an apology from the Government of Canada in Sudbury, Ont. on June 2, 2020.

The Recognition Payment and apology are part of the Métis Veterans Legacy Program established in partnership with the Trudeau government to commemorate forgotten Métis soldiers who have fought for Canada.

Métis Nation of Ontario Veteran Council (MNOCV) President Brian Black and recently elected Provisional President of the Métis Nation of Ontario (PCMNO) Chair Hank Rowlinson were on hand to present a message from President Margaret Froh as part of the ceremony.

Bill joined the Canadian Army Medical Corp in 1942 when he was 16 years old. He lied about his age in order to join and fight earlier and did so without his parent’s knowledge.

Bill spent his 17th birthday in London during the Battle of Britain. His group landed on Juno Beach with the D-Day invasion on June 6, 1944. Bill spent 18th birthday on the battlefields of France and served throughout the European theater in Belgium, the Netherlands and Germany. Near the end of war after Germany’s surrender, Bill volunteered to join the Pacific campaign against Japan to fight alongside Canada’s American allies. However, before he could be redeployed to the Pacific, Japan surrendered.

Bill says he had seen the human toll of war and what he saw during his time in combat left him with post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). Not until the Vietnam War in the 1970s was he able to receive the treatment he needed for his PTSD.

The Metis Nation of Ontario’s Summer Youth Program is back this year though as the world takes the necessary precautions against COVID-19, the program is a little different this year.

As the youth prepare to work from home this year MNO staff and supervisors in the Education and Training department have been hard at work to create a plan to help these students achieve the same goals and connections with their cultures. This all while being spread across the province.

While this has drastically changed the logistics of the program, Tammy Webb at the Education and Training branch says this has actually allowed for expansion and development of the initiative.

“Working remotely is the key to being able to roll out the program for 2020,” said Webb. “It has also afforded the MNO the ability to hire 30 Metis youth. In years past the students had to be formally located at office sites that could accommodate additional staff and we would usually only be able to hire 18 to 20 students.”

As the program shifts to fully remote this year the youth have been given tasks that reflect the new digital-focused landscape we find ourselves in now that we are all working from home.

“This year we have put the students together in teams spread across the Province and provided them with the technical equipment to connect via Zoom, to be creative and work on short video clips relative to Metis culture,” said Webb.

“Something new this year that we are calling ‘The Metis Minute.’ These minutes will be modeled after the Canadian Heritage but it will be Metis specific.”

Webb goes on to say that these videos will be developed with information that is available on the MNO website but in a format that is brief and to the point.

“This summer should be fun and exciting.” Other videos the youth will be tasked in making include step-by-step instructions on how to bead, finger weave and other traditional crafts.

As the program moves forward throughout the summer safety will be the top priority for the MNO and its staff which includes youth in the Summer Youth Program.

As of right now, all of our employees are working from home following recommendations from the Government of Ontario.

If this changes before the summer ends this will have no effect on the youth in the program as they will remain working from home regardless. The MNO believes this is the best option to keep our youth safe.

While this is a much different way of doing things from past years the youth are still excited not only to work creatively with the MNO but also learn more about and become closer with their roots.

Janelle Masicotte is a returning youth to the program this year and she says she understands the need to change it up this year and she’s excited to see what’s in store.

“I believe that our SYP team will have a great summer since we will have the opportunity to get creative, have fun and jump out of our comfort zone with the work that we will be doing,” said Masicotte.

“I strongly believe that the MNO has been doing exceptional work for the virtual transition and even though this is a learning process for everyone, the staff is always ready to help each other which makes everything so much easier.”

The program has evolved even over the last few years as the focus has shifted from a historical focus to a more contemporary one.

MNO mourns loss of Métis Veteran Joe Paquette

Joe Paquette will surely be missed by a number of people both young and old, however his lively spirit will live inside all of us.

In February 2014, Joe was the recipient of the 2015 Lieutenant Governor’s Ontario Heritage Award for Lifetime Achievement and in October 2014, he received the Minister of Veterans Affairs Commendation for work done with the MNO Veterans Council. This past July, Joe was bestowed with the “Order of the Métis Nation” by the Métis National Council. The “Order of the Métis Nation” recognizes the positive impact a recipient has made in moving forward the rights and aspirations of Métis people.”

“Joe Paquette will surely be missed by a number of people both young and old, however his lively spirit will live inside all of us,” expressed Brian Black. “Your work is done, Joe. Rest easy.”

The MNO extends its deepest condolences to Joe’s family and friends, and wishes them strength in these difficult times.

Brad Maggrah remembered for tireless fight for Métis rights

ne of the founding members of the Métis Nation of Ontario, Brad Maggrah has died.

Brad spent the better part of the last three decades training and supporting Métis citizens across the province. Brad was one of the first Provisional Council of the Métis Nation of Ontario (PCMNO) Councillors for Region 2 and served on the PCMNO from 1995 - 1999.

In 1995, he was a member of the team negotiating with the Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) for hunting rights for Métis.

While a PCMNO Council or, Brad helped to establish community councils in Kenora and Dryden, as well as the Northwest Métis Council in Wabigoon.

At the same time, Brad was also the Vice-President of the Dryden Community Centre.

His father, a Métis born in Wawang Saskatchewan, near Batoche later settled in Wabigoon, came north to bring their family in Kakwa. In 1973, he moved to Grand Cache, Alberta to work in the coal mines, operating heavy equipment.

When Brad returned to Ontario he combined his logging skills with his knowledge of heavy equipment, and worked as a logging contractor in Sioux Lookout.

Brad then moved to Ear Falls where he expanded his contracting business by purchasing his own heavy equipment.

It was here that Brad also trained Métis in the use of heavy machinery.

Brad was recognized with Queen’s Jubilee medal, and also with an Eagle feather from the Congress of Aboriginal Peoples for his work fighting for indigenous rights.

A celebration of life and an interment will take place at an as-yet-unnamed date.

MNO Citizen Hector “Hec” Lavigne remembered

Long-serving Mayor of Callander, Ontario and Métis Nation of Ontario Citizen Hector “Hec” Lavigne has died. Lavigne entered politics as Reeve of Callander in December of 2000. He sat and chaired numerous local and regional boards and committees while maintaining full-time employment in the insurance industry as a Commercial Lines Account Manager with the River Insurance brokerage firm.

Lavigne was a proud Métis who served on the board of directors of the Métis Voyageur Development Fund (MVDF) since the MNO initiated its formation in 2011. The MVDF is an independent Métis-owned and controlled agency that provides funding and support for Métis businesses.

“The Board and Staff of MVDF greatly regret the passing of Mr. Hector Lavigne, who served as Treasurer for the past eight years,” said MVDF CEO Steven Morse, “Hec brought passion and professionalism to the Board, expressed in his characteristic no nonsense style. He cared deeply for the promotion of Métis rights and self-reliance; Hec was integral to our success. Most of all we will miss his laughter, his counsel, his exuberance, and the presence of a good man.”

MPP Vic Fedeli, whose riding covers Callander, says Lavigne put a lot of pride in the town and in his Métis heritage. “He was a proud Métis and served on one of the Métis funding agencies and his goal was to bring additional funding into the Nipissing area. He worked very, very hard on that and I don’t think anybody really realized that,” said Fedeli.

Lavigne is survived by his wife Lynne and his three children Nathan (Jaimie), Christopher (Celeste) and Kevin (Lindsay). The family plans to continue one of Hec’s nearest and dearest projects: the beautification of Centennial Park in Callander. Donations to the “Hec Lavigne Centennial Park Beautification Project” will be accepted at the BBC Branch at 5 Main Street in Callander, ON.

Lavigne’s funeral was held on January 12, 2020.

Former MNO Northwest Métis Council President Ron Robinson passes

It is with deep regret that the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) announces the passing of Ron Robinson on March 13, 2020. As President of the Northwest Métis Council, Dryden, Ron was devoted to his position and to the Métis citizens that he served.

Ron enjoyed meeting other Métis from other regions and made lasting friendships and incredible bonds.

Ron was a true Métis with the great respect for Mother Earth. Ron enjoyed his camp, boating, blueberry picking and hunting, just to name just a few passions. Ron was respected by his colleagues from his community council and by the MNO Region One Consultation Committee.

Ron was extremely proud that he was a part of the signing with MNO-Canada Framework on Advancing Reconciliation with the Northwestern Ontario Métis Community in 2017.

He will be greatly missed by all.

“Dryden has always been home for us,” wrote Ron’s wife Jo Ann in Ron’s obituary.

“Ron loved the waters and the great outdoors, from wind-sailing; boat sailing, year-round fishing was his greatest joy.”

Ron volunteered at the MNO Northwest Métis Council, based out of Dryden, for many years. He served as Chair of the Council and later as President.

“He did his best to bring the community members together,” said Jo Ann. “He managed a positive circle of council members and had supportive guidance from neighboring councils of Kenora, Fort Frances and Atikokan.

A celebration of life will be determined at a later date.

In memory of Métis WWII Veteran Alex Boucher

It was with deep sadness that the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) reports the loss of Métis Veteran Alexander Sandy Boucher who passed peacefully the morning of July 12, 2020 in Parry Sound, ON.

“Alex was truly a charming, independent spirit with many remarkable stories, and it has been my great pleasure to get to know him and his family over the years,” shared MNO President Margaret Froh in a statement this morning.

“Our thoughts and prayers go out to Alex and his loved ones during this sad time, but we look forward to hearing more stories about Alex as we honour this exceptional individual and his many achievements.”

Boucher was a celebrated World War 2 Veteran, serving as Corporal in the Army Infantry and Medical Corps from 1942-1945. Additionally, he was responsible for the training of new recruits in battlefield medical procedures and rifle range. In 2013, he was registered as a member of the MNO Veterans Council.

An honoured recipient of both the Louis Riel Medal and the Order of the Sash, Boucher was also identified in a formal apology from the federal government addressed to Métis Veterans in 2019. This long-anticipated apology recognized Boucher for his many sacrifices and contributions, and featured a special ceremony and presentation of a $20,000 cheque from the Minister of Veteran Affairs and Manitoba Métis Federation President, David Chartrand.

A beloved member of the Métis community and MNO Veterans Council, Boucher was acknowledged as the oldest Indigenous Veteran in Canada, having celebrated his 107th birthday in January at his home in Britt, ON. A celebration was held with Boucher’s friends and family, the MNO President, and Veterans Council, and included a special message from Minister of Veterans Affairs, Lawrence MacAuley, who expressed his gratitude to Boucher for his contributions and service.

“Thank you for what you did for this country, Alex,” shared Minister MacAuley: “When somebody needed to stand up and defend us, you were there.”

The MNO extends its sincere, heartfelt condolences to Alex Boucher’s family and loved ones during this time. Boucher was a beloved figure and while this loss will be deeply felt, his legacy will live on as we remember his strong spirit, his profound contributions to the Métis community, and his sacrifices when serving his country and nation.

This past January members of the Métis MNO Veterans’ Council and MNO President Margaret Froh joined members of the Boucher family on Alex’s 107th birthday in Britt, ON to honour the Veteran and recognize his many accomplishments and years of service:

Métis Voyageur
Issue no. 104, September 2020
Early two centuries after their forced relocation, a group of more than fifty Ontario Métis people returned to Boot-aagani-minis, Drummond Island, in the first organized return since 1828.

During the War of 1812, many Métis sided with the British taking up arms against their American adversaries. The war changed the political landscape and brought about a border-dispute. Drummond Island became part of American territory (the present-day state of Michigan). That saw the Métis removed from the land and dispersed around Georgian Bay. Many migrated to Penetanguishene, Sault Ste. Marie, Killarney and other surrounding areas.

Dylan Miner, a descendant of the Brissette-L’Hirondelle family, is an artist, activist, and scholar. Miner has gone to great lengths to investigate and honour the rich history of his ancestors and the Drummond Island descendants.

“What’s taking place now [Métis returning to the island], is a reclamation of our family stories, as historic communities here in Ontario have begun to reassert and reclaim the rights that we’ve always known, but have been reaffirmed through Doxie and more recent affimations. Part of that reclamation and assertion of rights is to look back and think about how those were practiced historically. For me, that’s thinking about traditional foods, medicines, harvesting, place names, etc.”

Documenting his research in a unique non-linear fashion, Miner has mapped the history of “The People Who Didn’t Sign Treaty” and produced a series of booklets which were gifted to attendees at the 2019 Métis Youth Leadership Conference and the MNO’s Annual General Assembly (AGA) in Sault Ste. Marie.

Following last year’s AGA, citizens were invited to take a trip across the U.S. border and back to their roots with a day trip to the Drummond Island. Miner and Sault Ste. Marie resident Mitch Case (recently elected to the Provisional Council of the MNO as the Region 4 Councilor) led the assembled group of Métis citizens through the woods to key historic sites while sharing their knowledge of the land and its people.

Descendants of ancestral families surveyed these meaningful spaces, including the remains of the former Fort Drummond, and posed for photos with kin and cousins, recreating images pulled from historical archives. Miner describes this reclamation of space as vital: “Those of us whose ancestors were here and forced off are going to have a very moving experience. For many people this is the first time they’ve been to the island. [This homecoming] is about reconnecting with the spirit of that place, and re-connecting with those ancestors buried on that island.”

Kassie Duomne, who attended with her siblings Jeff and Ali, had been talking about doing a trip to Drummond Island for years.

“Leading up to the trip, I was thinking a lot about how sad our ancestors must have been to leave the island, it’s very emotional,” said Kassie Duomne. “But it was great that I was able to travel and share this experience with my siblings and friends—friends who have pictures of our ancestors that also traveled together!”

While much evidence of the previous peoples has fallen into disrepair and ruin, including the former Fort Drummond — now being reclaimed by nature — efforts are being made to preserve what remains.

“I really enjoyed touring the old fort, where the only thing that remains is the chimney from the original building” said Jeff Duomne. “All of the trees have grown in around the ruins. It really lends scale to the amount of time since there have been people to take care of the land there.”

The return to the island concluded with a visit to Drummond Island Historical Museum. Constructed entirely of hand-hewn logs and stones recovered from Fort Drummond, the museum boasts an extensive collection of artifacts, with some Indigenous pieces dating back to 200 B.C.E. A reconstructed model of the former fort exists in miniature as well as tools, photographs, personal effects and more from the 19th and 20th centuries settlers are on display.

“It was pretty remarkable to see how unrecognized the Métis presence on the Island is. Visiting the fort and seeing its condition was very impactful, as was visiting the museum and seeing the history of the people who lived there,” shared Ali Dusome.

Miner hopes that more Métis begin thinking about ways to return to the island and creating ongoing presences there; and significantly, ways to more create lasting relationships to and on the island. To many Métis, Drummond Island represents a sacred space. Efforts are being made to return the space to the Métis community, including a proposal to build a cultural centre on the Island to continue building relationships and share traditional Métis knowledge.

Mitch Case sees great significance in Métis peoples returning to Drummond Island: “To be able to come home [to Drummond], not only reminds the world that we’re still here but reminds ourselves too.”

“[Part of the] insidious nature of colonization is it takes away our belief in ourselves, our belief that we deserve to be respected. Days like [today’s trip] really help build that pride, build that sense of identity and history. Everyone here will remember this and they’re going to talk about what they did and saw. They’ll tell the story of how we were forced off the island, but also how we came back. These are our stories – we need to honour and share them in a respectful way.”
