MNO-Ontario Framework Agreement renewed and Métis rights upheld by Federal Court of Appeal in Daniels v. Canada

Métis and Ontario begin to write new chapter in Métis rights recognition and reconciliation

April 17, 2014, was a very important day for Métis all across the Homeland and especially in Ontario. Early that morning, Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) President Gary Lipinski and the Honourable David Zimmer, Ontario Minister of Aboriginal Affairs, signed a renewed five-year Framework Agreement. Then only a few hours later the Federal Court of Appeal released its decision regarding Daniels v. Canada.

The new Framework Agreement builds on the previous Framework Agreement signed in 2008, but includes an increased focus on Métis rights through “advancing reconciliation between the Crown and the Métis people” and providing “a framework for meeting Ontario’s constitutional obligations towards the Métis people consistent with the honour the Crown and decisions of the courts.”

Daniels v. Canada was initiated by now deceased Métis leader Harry Daniels, for the purpose of forcing the federal government to acknowledge that Métis people fall under its jurisdiction and should enjoy rights and recognition comparable to First Nations. The Federal Court of Appeal decision on April 17 upheld rulings of lower courts that Metis fall under federal jurisdiction and meet the definition of “Indian,” outlined in the Canadian Constitution.

MNO President Lipinski said, “The renewal of our Framework Agreement is timely given today’s Federal Court of Appeal decision in Daniels v. Canada which re-affirms that the federal government has constitutional jurisdiction and responsibility to deal with the Métis as a distinct Aboriginal people.”

“The jurisdictional football played by the federal government cannot continue its complete exclusion of Métis from specific and comprehensive claims processes that are open to the two other constitutionally recognized Aboriginal peoples. The jurisdictional football the Métis are subjected to with respect to their rights, claims and needs must end,” stressed President Lipinski.

Notably, the Framework Agreement commits the MNO and Ontario to jointly “pursuing discussions with the Government of Canada on Métis rights issues and the Crown’s consultation duties.” Ultimately, the MNO hopes a Federal Métis Claims Policy is developed, which would provide a process to address these outstanding rights and claims issues similar to what the federal government has developed for First Nations and Inuit peoples.

“The message is clear from the courts: the federal government cannot continue its complete exclusion of Métis from specific and comprehensive claims processes that are open to the two other constitutionally recognized Aboriginal peoples. The jurisdictional football the Métis are subjected to with respect to their rights, claims and needs must end,” stressed President Lipinski.

The Framework Agreement also makes a new commitment on the part of the MNO and Ontario to “advance initiatives that support Métis children and youth to be the best that they can be.” This enhanced youth-oriented commitment - a priority for MNO President Lipinski and the MNO's ongoing commitment to building a stronger Métis Nation and Ontario.

Today’s signing of a renewed Framework Agreement,” stated Minister Zimmer, “will build on the 2008 agreement which helped develop important consultation capacity within the Métis Nation of Ontario, supported economic development initiatives and led to improved outcomes for Métis students. I am confident the renewed agreement will further advance the well-being of Métis people in Ontario.”

“Whether it’s enhancing our MNO bursaries at 31 colleges and universities across the province or making strategic investments to support Métis kids to see opportunities rather than obstacles, the processes and commitments set out in this Framework Agreement will assist us in building a stronger Métis Nation and Ontario,” concluded President Lipinski.

A copy of the new Framework Agreement has been posted on the MNO website at www.metisnation.org under Governance/Reference Documents.

More information on Daniels v. Canada is also posted on the MNO website and can be accessed from a link on the home page.
It’s not just one community – it’s about all communities

All MNO citizen volunteers recognized June Callwood Outstanding Achievement Award for Voluntarism

On April 10, Ontario recognized all Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) citizen volunteers, both past and present, with the June Callwood Outstanding Achievement Award for Voluntarism. The June Callwood Outstanding Achievement Award for Voluntarism recognizes individuals and groups for superlative volunteer contributions to their communities and to the province of Ontario.

The award is named after the late June Callwood, a Canadian journalist, author and social activist. She committed her life to action on social justice issues, particularly those related to women and children. She founded, or co-founded, more than 50 Canadian social action organizations. The award recognizes dedicated individuals and organizations who, like the late June Callwood, demonstrate exceptional leadership, creativity and innovation in their service to their communities and others.

Past recipients of this award have included organizations such as Victim Services of Algoma, North Bay Literacy Council, Hospice of Waterloo Region, Alvinston Community Group, The Huttom House Access Volunteer Program, The Mansard Cancer Assistance Group - Friends Who Care and The Leslieville Tree Project. The award was presented at a ceremony in Toronto on April 10 where all MNO citizen volunteers were represented by MNO President Gary Lipinski, PCMNO Youth Representative Mitch Case and three past recipients of the MNO Suzanne Rochon-Burnett Volunteer of the Year Award. The recipients present were MNO Sudbury Métis Council President Richard Sarrazin, Region 7 PCMNO Councillor Pauline Saulnier and MNO Historic Sault Ste. Marie Métis Council Senator Brenda Powley. The MNO Suzanne Rochon-Burnett Volunteer of the Year Award recognizes individuals who volunteer with the MNO on a year round basis and who have done so for a number of years.

The June Callwood award was presented to MNO representatives by the Honourable Michael Coteau, the Ontario Minister of Citizenship and Immigration. “I am honoured and humbled to accept this award on behalf of the volunteers who founded the MNO and all our past and present citizens,” said MNO President Gary Lipinski. “Métis citizen volunteers are the heart and soul of the MNO. These hard-working individuals spend thousands of hours annually building and strengthen- ing our Métis communities and it is through their continuous efforts that we are able to perform our important work. Volunteers are the backbone of the MNO!”

Senator Powley, who was the 2013 MNO Volunteer of the Year indicated that it was important that the award recognized all MNO citizen volunteers. “It’s not just one person,” she explained, “it’s just one community – it’s right across all the communities who put in the efforts. It’s rare to see that we are all being acknowledged for our work.”

The 2007 Volunteer of the Year, MNO Sudbury Métis Council President Sarrazin stated that, “It is an awesome thing to come to this volunteer award ceremony and to represent all the volunteers who put in the efforts. It’s rare to see that we are all being acknowledged for our work.”

The MNO was nominated by John Graham who has worked with the MNO in a number of projects. Graham has witnessed MNO’s outstanding voluntarism first-hand while working with the MNO in securing recognition of Métis rights surrounding healthy funding, developing of strate- gic plans, streamlining the MNO’s citizenship registry and while Deputy Chief Electoral Officer.

“As 2013 marks the 20th anniversary of the MNO,” wrote Graham in his nomination, “I felt it was an opportune time to recognize the dedicated volunteers who founded the MNO in 1993 and whose leadership continues to sustain the MNO today.”

Graham’s nomination recognized that in 20 years, Métis in Ontario went from a forgotten people to a people with a strong voice. He explains how Métis went from situations where health and educational institutions were almost entirely unaware of their existence to a place where there is a growing awareness and many of these institutions now work actively with the MNO. Through the work of MNO volunteers, Métis rights have been affirmed and where once the Ontario government refused to recognize these rights, today the Ontario government has entered into numerous agreements based on Métis rights.

Graham noted that not only was the MNO founded through the sheer will of volunteers, but its past and current governance structure has been and remains based entirely of volunteers. This includes representation and participation for regions, communities, women, youth, seniors and veterans. Last year, members of these bod- ies contributed 5,280 hours volunteer hours to the MNO.

Past and present volunteers also dedicated countless hours to the advancement of Métis rights, specifically R v. Powley. As a result of their efforts, in 2003, the Supreme Court affirmed Métis harvest rights and in 2004 the MNO lever- aged this momentous victory to negotiate the first Harvest Agreement in Canada.

“The MNO was founded by volunteers,” stated PCMNO Youth Representative Case, “it is where the MNO comes from and it’s our history but just as importantly, our future is based on volunteers as well. Our future is bright because we have so many people who are a part of making the dream and vision of the MNO a reality.”

Additionally, Graham noted that over the past year alone MNO volunteers contributed over 67,000 hours to enhance the well-being of Métis in Ontario with 52,000 hours volunteered by the MNO’s Chartered Community Councils, 1,080 by the Captains of the Hunt and 6,500 in healing and wellness services.

“It is very important that the MNO has received this award,” stated PCMNO Region 7 Councillor Saulnier, the 2010 MNO Volunteer of the Year, “as it helped make the Ontario government aware of all that MNO citizens are doing across Ontario and how strongly we support our culture.”

“MNO community council members volunteers thousands of hours every year. They play a crucial role in the fight for Métis rights, promoting Métis culture and traditions and fostering community empowerment and development,” stated President Lipinski. “We would not be where we are today without their endless commit- ment to the betterment of Métis in Ontario.”

Graham’s nomination was supported by let- ters of support from Mike Briggs, Manager of First Nations and Métis Relations with Bruce Power and Wendy Landry, Manager of First Na- tions, Métis and Municipal Affairs with Union Gas.

Alberta study links Aboriginal education gap to billions lost to the provincial economy

The Rupertsland Institute, an affiliate of the Métis Nation of Alberta (MNA), released the “Bringing the Aboriginal Education Gap in Alberta” report on March 4, 2014. The study measures the economic impact of the education gap in the lifetime earning potential of Aboriginal people in Alberta. The report concludes that economic loss to Alberta will be in the billions of dollars if it fails to seize this untapped opportunity by investing in Aboriginal education.

MNA President Audrey Poitras stated, “This report points to the need for increased cooperation between the federal and provincial governments with respect to Métis education and training. The report symbolizes the importance of building Métis institutional capacity that is capable of participating in important policy debates affecting Métis people. It should serve as a call for the Government of Canada to maintain its course on Aboriginal self-government programming, and for the Government of Alberta to fund education and training initiatives in the Métis community.”

F rom March 1-2, 2014, the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Infinite Reach Student Solidarity Network facilitators from the University of Ottawa and Carleton University came together to host their first Métis mocassin workshop. Held at Carleton University, 19 students from the University of Ottawa, Carleton University and Algonquin College attended the event.

The workshop was taught by Tegan Mandeville, the MNO Infinite Reach Facilitator for Loyalist College. An accomplished Métis artisan, Mandeville shared her skills and techniques with the students. MNO Senator Lois McCallum also attended the event and provided new faces was a great feeling.” MacLean hopes that the MNO Infinite Reach program can continue to grow and support more students in their post-secondary journey.

The event was one of many held at the university and MacLean was happy to see so many youth in attendance. “At our weekly beading circle the group kept saying they wanted to try making mocassins,” explained MacLean, “and to see it come together with so many new faces was a great feeling.”

MacLean hopes that the MNO Infinite Reach program can continue to grow and support more students in their post-secondary journey.

Kids have stress too

MNO holds meditation workshop for kids

Submitted by: Ryan Plante, MNO Community Wellness Coordinator

O n February 6, 2014, Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Community Wellness Coordinator Ryan Plante held a meditation workshop for students at the Golden Avenue Public School in Timmins.

Plante was invited by the school’s mental health team to hold the workshop as part of their Kids Have Stress Too program. Plante taught a class of Grades 1 and 2 students the benefits of meditation and how it can be a powerful tool in relieving stress. “I was able to engage with the students, teach them about meditation, where it came from, the benefits of meditation and how to proceed in executing meditation,” said Plante.

When children and youth experience stress, they do not always know how to deal with it. This can result in behavioural issues such as acting out, aggression or not listening to parents. Plante explained how meditation is a great way to help relieve stress in children and prevent these issues from emerging.

“Meditation is a technique that has been used for centuries, and the benefits of meditation are increased creativity, happiness, self-confidence and an overall well-being,” Plante stated. “I was able to inform them that meditation can be fun and engaging. While meditating, children should focus on something or someone that makes them truly happy, the skies the limit. With that, the child would sit down cross-legged and always thinking about that someone or something that makes them happy. Doing this for one to ten minutes is greatly beneficial for children and helps them calm down.”

Plante encourages families to join their children in meditation. Meditating as a family is beneficial for everyone and can lead to a greater bond between parents and children.

This initiative is just one of the ways the MNO is addressing the holistic needs of its communities at a local level. Through its Community Wellness Program, the MNO supports holistic approaches to the promotion of healthy living and the prevention of family violence.

Holistic Aboriginal health includes the physical, mental, emotional, spiritual and cultural aspects of life. Through an understanding of self, a vision of wellness balances body, mind and spirit and is promoted through the healing continuum.

The MNO actively seeks to partner with Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal people, organizations and governments to promote and encourage holistic health and culture-based programming.
Improving the cancer care journey for Métis in Ontario

Bringing light to the experiences of Métis people living with cancer and how their cancer journey can be improved

Submitted by: Storm J. Russell, PhD, MNO Senior Policy and Research Analyst

From December 4-5, 2013, a group of Métis from across the province who have experienced cancer gathered in Ottawa to share stories of their experiences in navigating the Ontario cancer care system (what they encountered, what it was like for them and their families) and to help identify ways in which they felt decision makers and health care providers might improve the cancer journey for Métis families in Ontario.

This two-day focus group was hosted by the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) and financial support was provided by the Canadian Partnership Against Cancer. The session was invaluable for all involved, especially the MNO as it continually strives to improve its understanding of Métis community healing and wellness needs and the supports and services available to MNO citizens.

The project is part of a broader Canada wide initiative that aims to better understand issues for clients living with cancer in order to bring about improvements to the design and planning of cancer control programs.

Findings

Barriers to effective care and treatment identified by the focus group participants included insufficient information about treatment options, lack of access to treatment and services locally, frequent and often lengthy travel required to access essential care and services, the prohibitive costs of drugs and treatments for those who do not have private health insurance, and the lack of Métis-cultural supports within the provincial health care system.

Participants also highlighted the critical importance of family, the Métis community and culture in easing their cancer journey, as well as the supports they received from the MNO and other sources within the broader health care system. This includes help with transportation and from treatments located outside their communities, assistance with home care and family supports, and in navigating the cancer journey.

Supportive clinicians and physicians who take the time to listen to clients’ needs and inform patients of the full range of treatment options available to them were also identified as being invaluable in the cancer journey, as was access to alternative and traditional therapies for those who chose to use them. The ability to access cancer screening, care and treatments locally without having to travel long distances and having access to the best drugs and treatments were also seen as fundamental needs. The importance of early detection was also underscored in this discussion, along with the need for regular screening opportunities.

The MNO will continue to learn from these important conversations with its citizens, who in this case demonstrated so much courage and determination in navigating their cancer journey. The MNO also acknowledges their courage and willingness to meet in Ottawa to share their experiences. The MNO is extremely grateful for the wisdom that was gained from this effort and the unique insights they provided into the Métis cancer journey, all of which will benefit the Métis community and broader MNO family both now and in the years to come.

With this information in hand, the MNO will continue to work with the Government of Ontario, the Canadian Partnership Against Cancer, Cancer Care Ontario and the Local Health Integration Networks (LHIN) to identify the factors that contribute to cancer in Métis communities, improve cancer services and programs within the province and to help bring about better healing and wellness outcomes.

MNO Consultation Committees receive training

During the weekend of March 15-16, over 60 members of Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Consultation Committees participated in annual New Relationship Fund (NRF) training in Toronto which was organized by MNO Lands, Resources and Consultations Branch staff.

The Consultation Committees work in collaboration with MNO staff to ensure inclusive, transparent and meaningful Métis consultation and accommodation processes with the Crown and proponents are in place. This collective-based, aggregate approach enables the MNO to ensure that regional rights-bearing communities have access to the technical and scientific expertise they need to effectively engage in consultation and accommodation processes.

In addition to MNO Lands, Resources and Consultations staff, training sessions were also provided by MNO Communications staff and MNO Education and Training staff and each committee met separately to consider their priorities for the upcoming year and to discuss their direction and long-term plans. The annual training again proved very valuable and demonstrated the value of MNO citizens and leaders in this field coming to work and learn together.

Métis students explore their culture and future aspirations

The 2014 MNO Infinite Reach March Break Camp

This March break, 22 Métis high school students from across Ontario gathered in Mattawa for the 2014 Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Infinite Reach March Break Camp. This was a large increase in attendance from previous camps as the event becomes more popular each year.

Held at the Canadian Ecology Centre (CEC), this four-day retreat provided an opportunity for students to discuss post-secondary options and learn about the MNO and its Infinite Reach Métis Solidarity Network while embracing their culture and heritage. The MNO Infinite Reach Network is comprised of Métis post-secondary students who have the common goal of working together to enhance their post-secondary experience. The program is designed to ease the transition of Métis high school students to post-secondary by creating a community where Métis students can share experiences and support one another in their academic pursuits.

“Métis Reach March Break Camp is a chance for university and college students to connect with high school students and introduce them to not only what post-secondary is about but also what’s available as far as support and community at the institutions they are applying to,” explained Sahara Maclean, CEC, and Elijah Cadarette also volunteered at the camp.

The cultural and heritage aspect of the camp was also a favourite of Toronto student Will McLean. “These kids didn’t know each other yesterday and now they are together and sharing, that’s Métis family,” said Senator Porter-Brunelle. “It makes me proud and happy to see them all come together and share something… I think it’s just excellent.”

Throughout their stay, the students participated in various cultural activities that allowed them to connect with nature. A favourite of Sudbury student Melanie-Rose Frappier was the snow shoe hike through the beautiful grounds. Students were also taught about different tree types while taking a winter hike along the very same waterways their voyageur ancestors traveled. At night, a wolf howl was held and enjoyed by all. The evenings consisted of delicious meals, free time and camp fire socials.

“It is a great learning experience because I don’t know too much about being Métis so I wanted to learn about that,” said Sudbury student Alexandre Savoie. “Also I knew it would be fun because of the cultural and outdoors activities.”

Traditional Métis crafts were a big hit. Students participated in beading, medicine pouch and moccasin workshops and finger weaving lessons were provided by MNO Infinite Reach Facilitators for Sault College, Nikki Doucette and Melody Choislett-Morris. MNO Infinite Reach Facilitators for Carleton University, Tera Beaullers and Elijah Cadarette also volunteered at the camp.

Along with cultural activities, students were provided an overview on the future job market, information on various post-secondary opportunities, potential funding, programs, disciplines and took part in a resume writing workshop.

An overview of the MNO, its education and training programs and a screening of the MNO documentary The Métis Nation of Ontario: 1993-2013 was provided to the students. Additionally, Renée Michaud, the 2012/13 MNO Generation Innovation Challenge runner up talked to the students about how to take advantage of resources available to them.

Many students showed up to camp as strangers but left as great friends. Taylor Cosman from Barrie, Chantelle Goulquier from Atikokan and Ezra McCarthy from Pickering expressed how meeting fellow Métis youth was their favourite part of the experience.

The camp proved to be a great opportunity for students to build networks not just with each other but with the Infinite Reach Facilitators, MNO staff and community members.

The second volume of Honouring Indigenous Women, published by the Indigenous Peoples Solidarity Movement Ottawa, focuses on themes related to women’s lived experiences and relationships and is comprised of written and artistic pieces from 62 women and men from various nations.

The book launch was held at The Toronto Birth Centre, the new home for Seventh Generation Midwives Toronto, a collective of midwives who provide maternity care to women throughout Toronto. The decision to hold the book launch in this community space reflected the key theme and purpose of gathering that evening: to honour the strength and powerful gifts that indigenous women provide in leading, educating, healing, and nurturing our culture, communities and nations.

The evening began with a traditional opening prayer provided by Elder Joanie Dallaire and an honour song was shared by Spirit Wind Women’s Hand Drum Group to honour all of the contributing authors in attendance that evening. Opening remarks were shared by Rebeka Tahboubondung, Editor of Muskrat Magazine; Tera Beaulieu, Women’s Representative for the MNO Toronto and York Region Métis Council; and Pei-Ju Wang, Women’s Representative, MNO Toronto and York Region Métis Council; and Pei-Ju Wang, Women’s Representative, MNO Toronto and York Region Métis Council.

As songs were being drummed and sung by the circle, it was announced that the first Aboriginal baby had just been delivered by two of the Aboriginal midwives at the birthing centre! As cheers of joy erupted throughout the room, a traditional welcoming song was sung to welcome the newest member of the Aboriginal community into the world. It is hard to imagine a more beautiful and miraculous event taking place that evening, where everyone had gathered to honour the gifts and beauty of our women and all their relations.

As one of the contributing authors and co-organizers for the book launch, Beaulieu was honored to have had the opportunity to share her writing and story with Métis community members, and also the wider Indigenous community of Toronto. An excerpt of her contributions can be viewed below.

As the Women’s Representative for the MNO Toronto and York Métis Council, Beaulieu found it a privilege to represent the Council that evening and she is grateful for all of the support Council members and the community offered in the organization and implementation of the book launch.

The genuine caring, respect, and warmth that was tangible in the room that evening was not only healing, but energizing and inspiring to continue on in our work to serve and honour our Métis women.

Becoming Métis:
A Journey of Learning and Healing

My identity as a Métis woman is ever evolving and changing. While I have always been connected to my European (Hungarian and Ukrainian) ancestry, my roots with Métis culture and history have only started to grow and strengthen within the last five years. My narrative is one that includes many voices and many stories that have been shared with me by my family. Telling this story is part of my healing process and journey, and represents some of the experiences and teachings that I have gathered thus far along the path that I am walking.

I am Métis on my father’s side. My grandfather was born in St. Laurent, Manitoba, a large Métis community that takes great pride in its history and the preservation of Métis culture. My great-grandparents were Métis from Manitoba and Saskatchewan. My grandfather passed away when I was a very young child, and because of the effects of colonization and my family’s own experienced intergenerational trauma (e.g., alcohol abuse, internalized shame, physical abuse), I became disconnected from Métis culture. To this day, certain family members refuse to discuss our ancestral ties, as I believe it brings up too much pain and grief. As a result of these experiences, I was not raised in the Métis culture, nor did I learn of my identity as a Métis woman until later in life. When I think back to my childhood, I can recall the strong intrinsic resonance that I experienced in connection to Aboriginal culture. For instance, the first time I attended a Pow Wow with my mother, as she has always enjoyed participating and exposing my sister and I to different cultures, I remember how struck I was by the sight of an eagle feather and hearing the drum. While I can recall as a young child hearing my aunt’s and uncles refer to themselves as (Continued on page 13)
Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) citizen and renowned Métis artist Christi Belcourt is using her creative talents to support the social movement working to end violence against Aboriginal women. Belcourt has initiated Walking with Our Sisters, a traveling exhibition of beaded moccasin tops, each pair commemorating a missing or murdered Aboriginal woman.

The number of missing and murdered Aboriginal women and girls in Canada is disproportionately high when compared to the general population. Over the last 20 years, this has involved over 800 Aboriginal women and girls and although many people have called for a national inquiry, the federal government has rejected the idea. Walking with Our Sisters is both a memorial and a call to action over this long-simmering issue.

Launched in 2013, Walking with Our Sisters is a 100 per cent artist driven commemorative art installation project that seeks to honour the lives of missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls. The project came to life when Belcourt made a Facebook appeal in hopes to assemble a show of 600 pairs of hand-made moccasin tops. To her surprise, she received overwhelming support and received 1,723 pairs from all over the world. The appeal also resulted in 65 beading circle projects where many people learned the craft for the first time and provided the opportunity for community-based dialogue on the issue.

A truly collaborative project, Walking with Our Sisters is an entirely crowd-sourced project. From the artwork, to the fundraising, even to the way the exhibit tour is being booked, are all being fuelled by hundreds of people who have chosen to become involved.

The installation of the exhibit consists of the more than 1,700 pairs of donated moccasin tops from 1,372 people. The moccasin tops are installed in a winding path on cloth across a gallery floor. Each moccasin top represents an Indigenous woman or girl who is missing or has been murdered. Sometimes called “vamps”, “tongues” or “uppers”, the tops of the moccasins are intentionally not sewn into moccasins to represent the unfinished lives of the women they honour. Each exhibit is specific and unique to the space it is being held in. The exhibits are also installed following specific, ceremonial protocol and traditions of the communities with the help of volunteers and elders.

“This project is about these women, paying respect to their lives and existence on this earth… They are not forgotten. They are sisters, mothers, daughters, cousins, aunts, grandmothers, friends and wives. They have been cared for, they have been loved, and they are missing.”

“What I’m hoping this exhibition will do, with the scope of the work, the amount of artists combined and with audience participation, is that it will contribute in a positive way to the dialogue about this issue,” stated Belcourt in a previous interview. It has been said that in the darkest of times, Métis beadwork was more vibrant as creating beautiful works was a way of countering the dark. This is particularly evident in the Walking with Our Sisters exhibit.

The exhibit is scheduled to make stops in more than 30 locations across Canada and the United States, with organizers currently booking dates into 2019. Upcoming Ontario exhibits are being held in Sault Ste. Marie and Thunder Bay.

When attending the exhibition, visitors are asked to take off their shoes before walking on paths of cloth that run alongside the tops.

MNO citizen, artist Christi Belcourt.
“Indian” and once hearing my father tell me that I was good at weaving threads because “it was in my blood,” I never truly understood what these comments meant or that they referred to an aspect of our family and my personal identity. Close to five years ago, my family was brought together again as a result of an uncle passing. Part of our healing process was to tell stories about our family members, with laughing and crying and reminiscing. It was during this gathering that my aunts and uncles began to discuss our Aboriginal ancestry in depth and that I learned of my connection with Métis culture and ancestry. This event spurred an undertaking that has lasted for the past three years in which I researched, investigated, and reconnected with my Métis roots and culture.

Identifying and connecting with a Métis community has been both challenging and rewarding. For a while I felt very isolated and disconnected from Métis peoples living in Toronto, as I did not perceive there to be a community that had established cultural and historical connections with the larger Métis community. One of the most rewarding experiences in my life was to travel to St. Laurent and spend time in my grand- father’s ancestral community, listening to the Elders, learning about the history of the community, and smoking tobacco at the site of my ancestors’ burial grounds. I felt an incredible and powerful connection to this land and to the community as a whole. Upon returning to Toronto from this trip, I was even more motivated to find a community of Métis peoples that I could exchange stories and celebrate our culture with. Within the past year, the Métis Nation of Ontario started a program entitled the Infinite Beach Métis Student Solidarity Network, which is comprised of incoming and upper year postsecondary students who work to establish a network of Métis students within educational institutions. As the facilitator of this program at the University of Toronto, I organized a number of Métis specific events and activities over the course of the year, strengthening a Métis community within the University, and also within the larger community of Toronto. I have been able to form many wonderful relationships with other Métis individuals in the city, which has helped me in my own healing and development as a strong and proud Métis woman. I look forward to returning these gifts back to my community and the future generations of Métis to come.

BOOK REVIEW

Métis Grandfather

He was once a prisoner of his Métis roots and heritage. Whenever he came, the boys always hoped that their grandfather would tell them more interesting stories about their Métis ancestors."

Both boys loved it when their grandpar- ents came to visit them. They knew that their grandfather was proud of his Métis roots and heritage. Whenever he came, the boys always hoped that their grandfather would tell them more interesting stories about their Métis ancestors. Actually, during this week long visit of their “Grandfather Ho Ho,” the boys were now, more than ever, determined to ask him about their Métis background and traditions since they were in the process of learning more about the Aboriginal, includ- ing the First Nation, Inuit, and Métis way of life in school.

Métis culture at Textile Museum of Canada

O

My people will sleep for one hundred years, but when they awake, it will be the artists who give them their spirit back.”

— Louis Riel

Material culture is integral to the Métis way of life. Métis define themselves in many ways, by music, stories, and par- ticularly by the way they adorn themselves. This is especially apparent when looking at distinctive Métis objects such as the iconic sash or Métis traditional clothing. These are physical manifestations of a woman’s love for her family. These are symbols of Métis culture that can only be preserved by making them part of everyday life.

The MacLeans invite the community to join them on May 21, from 5pm to 8pm at the Textile Museum of Canada in Toronto to explore your own Métis identity through the art of beading. The workshop is free with a pay-what-you-can admission to the museum. Everyone from beginners to expert grandmothers welcome.

MNO Toronto and York Region Métis Council Governance & Finance training

Submitted by: Beth Honsberger, MNO Community Relations Coordinator

The Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) benefits immensely from the dedicated volunteers who are members of its chartered community councils. These hard-working individuals spend hundreds of hours building and strengthening their Métis communities.

The MNO has been able to develop and deliver a Governance and Finance course that helps community councils perform their important work. Recently, the MNO Toronto and York Region Métis Council participated in this two-day seminar from February 8-9.

The training was facilitated by MNO Community Relations Coordinators Glen Lipinski and Beth Honsberger. The training explains the role of community councils as the MNO’s local governments, whose structure and purpose is coordinated through each council’s charter agreement with the MNO. The course covers everything from how to run effective meetings and engage citizens in council activities to budgeting and the various financial practices, as well as regulations and legislation that community councils follow.

Newly elected Council members benefited from the training and veteran members were able to expand their knowledge and share past experiences. Also in attendance were eager members of the Toronto and York Region Métis community who were enthusiastic to learn, participate and become an active part of their local Métis community.

MNO Great Lakes Métis Council holds Valentine’s & Family Day event

Submitted by: Susan Schank, Office Coordinator for the MNO Great Lakes Métis Council

On Sunday February 9, the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Great Lakes Métis Council held a Valentine’s Day themed Family Day celebration for MNO citizens and friends.

A potluck was held and enjoyed by all. The space was decorated by Métis youth with hearts hanging from the ceiling, draped on the tables and center pieces. Love was everywhere!

Among the many treats, there were candy dishes created by Métis youth member Emma Harrison. Each were full with cinnamon hearts and 64 homemade pink frosted cupcakes, which were displayed on a three tiered carousel. The cupcakes were especially enjoyed by many children who even used their fingers to taste before they devoured this special sweet treat.

Gingerbread houses were built, frosted and then adorned with candy by families. The gingerbread house was used to symbolize family and home.

The event was coordinated and facilitated by Métis youth and they did an excellent job!

After the sticky cleanup, the MNO documentary Métis Nation of Ontario 1993-2003 was shown.

MNO staff members Jo-Anne Parent and Jessica Rice were also in attendance and provided a presentation on MNO education and training programs. What a wonderful way to celebrate Family Day!

The $60 poverty challenge

Submitted by: Nancy Hatch, Administrative Assistant Coordinator for the MNO Northwest Métis Council

In the 2006 Census, 73,605 Ontarians identified themselves as Métis. This commitment flows to providing a diverse range of Métis business opportunities in Ontario. This goal, the Ontario Government and MNO have committed $3 million from discussions held under the MNO-Ontario Framework Agreement that was signed in November 2010.

The creation of the Métis Voyageur Development Fund will be able to support Métis entrepreneurs and businesses in western Canada. The ultimate goal of the fund is to reach 10,000 Métis households.

According to the 2001 Census, 72,000 Métis live in Ontario and the majority of these live in urban settings. The Métis from rural Ontario traditionally have few real opportunities to grow and develop their business skills and understanding of the market. Some Métis youth and adults in rural Ontario have already approached the Council for assistance in starting their own enterprises.

The challenge, which kicked off the 7th Annual Week of Action Against Poverty, asked families to attempt to stay within a social assistance budget for five days. As a single parent family, the Griffiths were allotted $60 for the week. This is the same amount provided by the Ontario Works Basic Needs Benefit.

The budget included all food and drink, entertainment, some personal supplies and transportation costs. In addition to making every penny count, the family also contended with unforeseen circumstances in the form of a day of illness. The challenges, which can be read about on the family’s blog, included no Wi-Fi, a school bake sale, ice and swimming lessons. A difficult challenge for a family whose regular “basic needs” budget is double that of what was provided, the Griffiths managed to make it through with some change left over. The family gained a new found appreciation for all that they have. The kids were eager to have their electronics back and Amber enjoyed a Tim Hortons coffee.

“I am grateful for the opportunity to do this challenge with my family,” wrote Amber in the family’s final blog post, “and hope that we have helped our community in some way understand what is out there.”

The Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Geor- gin Bay Métis Council members are being noted by local Conserva- tion Clubs such as the North Simcoe Anglers and Hunters and the Lafontaine Habitat Res- toration Association for their environmental work.

Last year the MNO Georgian Bay Métis Council members helped the North Simcoe Anglers and Hunters plant 4,600 trees in the Simcoe County Forest Millennium Tract. Both groups have recently approached the Council asking for help with upcoming tree planting projects for the spring.

The Council is glad to be given the opportunity to continue their conservation efforts in the region.

Council members also partnered with Georgian Bay Bassmasters to purchase 1,200 trees hope which they will reverse the prob- lem of dropping water levels near Lafontaine, Ontario. The Lafontaine Habitat Restoration Association provided volunteers and fantastic local and specific knowledge.

These are great organizations all working in the name of conservation and the Council is proud of its role.

Lessons were provided to the youth on snowshoeing and how to use a compass. It was impressive how quickly the youth caught on to both activities. While sledding, youth were also shown how the Métis sash was used to keep warm and were taught about the practicality of the sash as well as its sym- bolic importance.

The group was also fortunate to of enjoyed a dinner and a movie night and a four feature drive-in movie night at the MNO office in Midland.

Additionally, MNO Georgian Bay Métis Council youth enjoyed an evening of making yule logs for Christmas. Youth member Dalton Latondres took great pride in creating a wonderful yule log decoration. He was generous enough to gift it to the secretary at his school. She was over- whelmed and moved by his generosity.

She told Latondres that his yule log would be the centre piece of her Christmas dinner table.

The Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Georgian Bay Métis Council Youth Group has been very active this winter. The youth have been working on creating walking sticks and dream catchers as well as activities such as snowshoeing, orienteering and towhogaining.

Lessons were provided to the youth on snowshoeing and how to use a compass. It was impressive how quickly the youth caught on to both activities. While sledding, youth were also shown how the Métis sash was used to keep warm and were taught about the practicality of the sash as well as its symbolic importance.

The group was also fortunate to of enjoyed a dinner and a movie night and a four feature drive-in movie night at the MNO office in Midland.

Additionally, MNO Georgian Bay Métis Council youth enjoyed an evening of making yule logs for Christmas. Youth member Dalton Latondres took great pride in creating a wonderful yule log decoration. He was generous enough to gift it to the secretary at his school. She was overwhelmed and moved by his generosity. She told Latondres that his yule log would be the centre piece of her Christmas dinner table.

Attendees also shared their thoughts and provided feedback.
Métis singer-songwriter receives first-ever Juno nomination

Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) citizen Amanda Rheaume was nominated for a 2014 Juno Award in the category of Aboriginal Album of the Year. This is Rheaume’s first-ever Juno nomination. Rheaume is a Métis singer-songwriter known for her powerful voice. Her latest album Keep a Fire, which has been nominated for Aboriginal Album of the Year, is a collection of family stories celebrating her Métis heritage. Rheaume describes the album on her website as “varied and evocative collection of mostly story-songs about her ancestors that more than lives up to the tradition of epic, family-of-origin albums.”

“It’s such an honour to be nominated in this category,” said Rheaume in an interview with the Ottawa Sun, “because the album is comprised of songs about my heritage, my ancestors and tells the stories of the things they had to go through to give me the life I have now.”

The Ottawa born and raised musician was the winner of the 2008 LiVE 885 Big Money Shot challenge. She was also shortlisted last year for the Council for the Arts in Ottawa’s RBC Emerging Artist Award and has sung the national anthems at an Ottawa Senators hockey game. Fellow Juno nominees included George Leach, Inez Jasper, Desiree Dorion and Nathan Cunningham with Leach winning the Juno. The 43th annual Juno Awards was held in Winnipeg on March 30.
