Starting with this edition of the Métis Voyageur, I will be providing a brief message in order to highlight the many exciting developments taking place within the great Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO). As you will see in reading this edition of the Métis Voyageur, the Provincial Council of the MNO (PCMNO), all of our councils and volunteers, and the Métis public service have all been hard at work on behalf of our citizens and it is certainly paying off.

As I love to say, the stars have been aligning for the Métis Nation over the last several months and years, and we continue to see signs of just how true that is. Over the last ten months we have been busy at work implementing the many commitments made in my election campaign. We are making good progress and moving our nation forward!
On February 3, 2017, Metis Nation of Ontario (MNO) President Margaret Froh joined the Honourable Carolyn Bennett, M.D., P.C., M.P., Minister of Indigenous and Northern Affairs Canada to sign a Memorandum of Understanding to Advance Reconciliation with the Government of Canada (the MOU). The Honourable David Zimmer, Ontario’s Minister of Indigenous Relations and Reconciliation, members of the Provisional Council of the Metis Nation of Ontario (PCMNO), MNO citizens and guests were also in attendance.

The MOU establishes an exploratory discussion table between the MNO and Canada with the goal of arriving at a framework agreement by September 2017. The anticipated framework agreement would establish a formal negotiations process based on mutually agreeable subject matters, including Metis self-government, lands, rights and outstanding claims against the Crown.

“Today, we celebrate this new relationship – one based on respect and recognition,” said President Margaret Froh. “I thank the Minister and the Government of Canada for their strong leadership on advancing reconciliation with the Metis Nation of Ontario through this nation-to-nation, government-to-government agreement that further solidifies a strengthened relationship with Canada.”

Dr. Carolyn Bennett, Minister of Indigenous and Northern Affairs

This is an historic step forward in achieving lasting and meaningful reconciliation on a nation-to-nation, government-to-government basis for the benefit of the Metis Nation of Ontario and all Canadians.”

The MOU comes on the heels of recent positive political and legal developments for Ontario Metis, including the Prime Minister’s November 2015 mandate letter to Minister Bennett providing direction for her to advance a nation-to-nation, government-to-government relationship with the Metis Nation, the release of the Isaac Report as well as the Supreme Court of Canada’s landmark decision in Daniels v. Canada that was released in April 2016.

Minister Bennett stated: “Congratulations to the Metis Nation of Ontario on signing a Memorandum of Understanding to Advance Reconciliation. This is an historic step forward in achieving lasting and meaningful reconciliation on a nation-to-nation, government-to-government basis for the benefit of the Metis Nation of Ontario and all Canadians.”
MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING ON ADVANCING RECONCILIATION

WHAT IS THE MOU?

- The Métis Nation of Ontario ("MNO") and the Ministry of Indigenous and Northern Affairs Canada ("INAC"), on behalf of the Government of Canada ("Canada"), have engaged in bilateral dialogue since the summer of 2016 on how to best develop a process to advance reconciliation between the Crown and Ontario Métis.
- This dialogue led to the development of the MNO-Canada Memorandum of Understanding (the "MOU"), which was signed by MNO President Margaret Froh and Dr. Carolyn Bennett, Minister for INAC, at a signing ceremony in Toronto held on February 3rd, 2017. A copy of the MOU is available at www.Métisnation.org.
- The MOU establishes a time-limited exploratory discussions table between the MNO and Canada with the goal of arriving at a mutually-agreeable framework agreement by September 2017. This framework agreement would establish a formal negotiations process between the parties to advance reconciliation based on mutually-agreeable subject matters. (MOU, Articles 1 & 2)

WHAT LED TO THE MOU?

- Since its creation in 1993, the MNO has advocated for and represented the rights, interests and ambitions of Métis within Ontario—as a part of the larger Métis Nation—through its democratically-elected governance structures at the local, regional and provincial levels.
- Section 35 of the Constitution Act, 1982 recognizes the Métis as one of the "aboriginal peoples of Canada" and constitutionally entrenches Métis rights and other claims against the Crown. The Supreme Court has held that reconciliation requires that these protected rights and claims be determined, recognized and respected through negotiations between the Crown and the Métis.
- Since 1982, despite Section 35's promise, governments have largely refused to formally negotiate with the Métis. This led to the Métis turning to the courts to seek justice. In a series of cases over the last 15 years—including the MNO-led watershed Métis rights decision in Powley-2003 as well as MMP-2013, Daniels-2016—the Supreme Court has recognized Métis rights and claims and has urged that negotiations with Métis begin. This led to "a mutually agreeable process for formal negotiations. (MOU, Articles 11, 12 & 13)

WHAT ARE EXPLORATORY DISCUSSIONS?

- Within Canada’s claims resolution processes, exploratory discussions are Stage 2 of a 6-Stage process. These 6 stages include: (1) the filing of a claim by an Indigenous community with Canada; (2) acceptance of that claim for exploratory discussions to see if a formal negotiations mandate can be developed; (3) developing a framework agreement that establishes a formal negotiation mandate; (4) negotiation of an Agreement-Principle (“AIP”) that sets out key terms for an agreement; (5) negotiation and ratification of a final agreement; (6) implementation.
- In the past, Métis claims south of the 60th parallel never got past Stage 1. For example, in 1981, the Manitoba Métis Federation filed its land claim against Canada, which was summarily rejected by federal lawyers. After 32 years of litigation, the Supreme Court of Canada validated the MMP’s claim in 2013. This led to the MNO and Canada signing a MOU in May 2016 and a framework agreement for formal negotiation in November 2016. The MNO seeks to secure its own framework agreement with Canada without having to spend decades and millions of dollars in the courts.

WHY IS THE MOU IMPORTANT?

- As recognized in the above-noted MSR reports, Métis living south of the 60th parallel have been excluded from Canada’s claims negotiation processes for almost 50 years. Despite Métis inclusion in Section 35 and successive court victories, Canada has not amended its policies to include Métis. As a result, there

BACKGROUNDER & FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS - FEBRUARY 3, 2017 -

1. What is the MOU?

The MOU, or Memorandum of Understanding, is a formal agreement that establishes a framework for exploratory negotiations. It sets the stage for a more comprehensive and formal process, including the opportunity for a final agreement to be reached. (MOU, Articles 1 & 2)

2. Why is the MOU important?

The MOU is crucial because it formalizes the exploratory discussions table between the MNO and Canada, allowing for a structured process to advance reconciliation. It is the first step in a 6-stage process that could lead to a final agreement. (MOU, Articles 11, 12 & 13)

3. Why was the MOU developed?

The MOU was developed as a result of the ongoing dialogue between the MNO and Canada, with the goal of arriving at a mutually-agreeable framework agreement by September 2017. This framework agreement would establish a formal negotiations process between the parties to advance reconciliation based on mutually-agreeable subject matters. (MOU, Articles 1 & 2)

4. What are exploratory discussions?

Exploratory discussions are Stage 2 of a 6-Stage process within Canada’s claims resolution processes. These discussions are a step towards a formal negotiations mandate and are essential for advancing reconciliation. (MOU, Articles 11, 12 & 13)

5. Why is reconciliation important?

Reconciliation is important because it acknowledges the historical injustices faced by Indigenous peoples and seeks to establish a new relationship based on respect, recognition, and confidentiality. (MOU, Articles 11, 12 & 13)

6. What is the role of the MNO in reconciliation?

The MNO plays a crucial role in reconciliation by representing the rights, interests, and ambitions of Métis within Ontario. It engages in dialogue with the Government of Canada and has advocated for formal negotiations to advance Métis rights. (MOU, Articles 11, 12 & 13)

7. Where can I access the MOU?

The MOU is available online at www.Métisnation.org. It provides detailed information on the framework agreement and the process to advance reconciliation. (MOU, Articles 11, 12 & 13) have been no substantive negoti-ations on Métis self government, rights and outstanding claims.

- The MOU provides the opportu-nity for the MNO and Canada to craft a regionally tailored nego-tiations mandate that meets the unique rights, needs and aspirations of Ontario Métis, rather than being limited by existing federal claims policies that were designed for other Indigenous peoples and that other Indigenous groups often criticize as being frustrating and ineffic-enct.

- Unlike previous federal policy approaches to dealing with Métis—which solely focused on programs and service delivery or the development of Métis institutions—these exploratory discussions will look at how substantive issues such as Métis self government, rights and outstanding claims against the Crown can be negotiated.

- From the MNO’s perspective, this is a significant breakthrough because Canada has historically denied Métis self-government, rights and claims. These denials led to long and expensive litiga-tion such as Powley, MMB and Daniels. The MNO hopes that further litigation can be avoided through negotiations.

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING ON ADVANCING RECONCILIATION

The MOU provides the oppor-tunity for the MNO and Canada to craft a regionally tailored nego-tiations mandate that meets the unique rights, needs and aspirations of Ontario Métis, rather than being limited by existing federal claims policies that were designed for other Indigenous peoples and that other Indigenous groups often criticize as being frustrating and ineffic-enct.

- The MOU recognizes the im-portance of having the Prov-ince of Ontario involved in an overall process to advance rec-onciliation between the Crown and Ontario Métis. As such, the MOU provides for the province to become actively involved in the discussions (MOU, Article 3).

- The Parties hope that the Prov-ince of Ontario will ultimately become a full participant in the process; however, advancing the discussions under the MOU is not dependent on prov-inicial participation, since there are several subject matters that may not involve provincial jurisdiction.

- The MOU recognizes the im-portance of having the Prov-ince of Ontario involved in an overall process to advance rec-onciliation between the Crown and Ontario Métis. As such, the MOU provides for the province to become actively involved in the discussions (MOU, Article 3).

- The Parties hope that the Prov-ince of Ontario will ultimately become a full participant in the process; however, advancing the discussions under the MOU is not dependent on prov-inicial participation, since there are several subject matters that may not involve provincial jurisdiction.

- The MOU simply commits the MNO and Canada to the exploratory discussions pro-cess with the goal of achieving a framework agreement for for-mal negotiations. No negotia-tions have begun yet. As out-lined further below, the MNO will be engaging in province-wide consultations in the near future to begin a long and on-going conversation with On-tario Métis on how to best ad-vance Métis rights and claims as well as reconciliation. How long is the exploratory discus-sions process?

- The MOU sets out an 8 month exploratory discussions pro-cess, which can be extended if need be.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT?

- Over the next 8 months, the MNO and Canada will be meet-ing regularly to advance the discussions and work contem-plated under the MOU with the goal of arriving at a framework agreement that would establish a formal negotiations process (MOU, Article 5).

- During this same period, the MNO will also be undertaking province-wide consultations with Ontario Métis through the MNO Commission on Métis Rights (MNR) and other mechanisms to pro-vide further information on the MNO and the exploratory dis-cussions table as well as to receive guidance and input on the priority subject matters to be included in a framework agree-ment for future negotiations.

- The MOU will also be develop-ing and implementing a com-prehensive communication plan to ensure Ontario Métis are able to be informed and engaged and to provide input into the ex-ploratory discussions processes as well as future negotiations. While this is just the beginning of what will likely be a lengthy and far-reaching process, the MNO wants to ensure everyone has an opportunity to become engaged.

IS ONTARIO INVOLVED IN THE EXPLORATORY DISCUSSIONS?

- The MOU recognizes the im-portance of having the Prov-ince of Ontario involved in an overall process to advance rec-onciliation between the Crown and Ontario Métis. As such, the MOU provides for the province to become actively involved in the discussions (MOU, Article 3).

WHERE IS RECONCILIATION?

- The Supreme Court of Canada has held that reconciliation is a pro-process guaranteed to Aboriginal peoples by Section 35 of the Constitution Act, 1982. This process requires that Aboriginal rights and claims protected by Section 35 be determined, rec-ognized and respected by gov-ernments through honourable negotiations leading to just and lasting settlements (i.e., modern day treaties or other construc-tive arrangements).

- While the term “reconciliation” is increasingly used to describe any initiative done with or for the benefit of Indigenous peo-ple, it is the MNO’s perspective that real reconciliation requires that substantive issues such as Métis rights, self government, and outstanding claims against the Crown be dealt with. The preamble to the MOU sets out this perspective (i.e., that the discussions will address sub-stantive rights and claims re-liated issues).

DOES THE MOU AFFECT OR LIMIT MÉTIS RIGHTS OR CLAIMS?

- No. The MOU simply commits the MNO and Canada to the exploratory discussions process with the goal of achieving a framework agreement for formal negotiations. No negotiations have begun yet. As out-lined further below, the MNO will be engaging in province-wide consultations in the near future to begin a long and on-going conversation with Ontario Métis on how to best advance Métis rights and claims as well as reconciliation. How long is the exploratory discussions process?

- The MOU sets out an 8 month exploratory discussions process, which can be extended if need be.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT?

- Over the next 8 months, the MNO and Canada will be meet-ing regularly to advance the discussions and work contemplated under the MOU with the goal of arriving at a framework agreement that would establish a formal negotiations process (MOU, Article 5).

- During this same period, the MNO will also be undertaking province-wide consultations with Ontario Métis through the MNO Commission on Métis Rights (MNR) and other mechanisms to provide further information on the MNO and the exploratory discussions table as well as to receive guidance and input on the priority subject matters to be included in a framework agreement for future negotiations.

- The MOU will also be develop-ing and implementing a comprehensive communication plan to ensure Ontario Métis are able to be informed and engaged and to provide input into the exploratory discussions processes as well as future negotiations. While this is just the beginning of what will likely be a lengthy and far-reaching process, the MNO wants to ensure everyone has an opportunity to become engaged.

HOW DO I GET INVOLVED?

In order to stay up-dated in develop-ments, we encourage all MNO members to up-date their Registry files with their up-to-date ad-dress, email and phone numbers. Please contact the MNO Head Office at 1-855-798-1006 to update your file.

As well, please regularly visit www.Metisnation.org or join our Face-book page at www.facebook.com/Metis-Nation-of-Ontario-1476202 41192683/ or Twitter at @MétisNationON in order to receive regu-lar updates on further developments.
The creation of the MNO Commission on Métis Rights and Self-Government is both timely and significant, in light of recent court decisions (the Daniels Decision of April 14, 2016); the tabling of the federal report and recommendations of the Minister’s Special Representative Mr. Thomas Isaac on Reconciliation with Métis in July 2016; the recent passage of the Métis Nation of Ontario Secretariat Act in December, 2015; and clear, unambiguous federal commitments and intentions to advance reconciliation for the Métis Nation. There is also clear recognition in the federal arena that reconciliation must be action oriented, that this action must be swift, and that the process of reconciliation must fully acknowledge the rights of the Métis people, as enshrined in section 35 of the Canadian Constitution.

These watershed events are the culmination of decades of dedicated effort and reflect the collective aspirations of the Métis Nation, aspirations which within the MNO are articulated in the MNO Statement of Prime Purpose, a document that continues to define our strength as a people, a nation and a government. It is within this ground breaking conversation and climate of reconciliation and relationship-building that the work of the MNO Commission on Métis Rights and Self-Government will be situated.

The MNO Commission’s consultations with MNO citizens and Métis communities will be informed by, and conducted within, this broader historical and political context. The findings of the MNO Commission will contribute substantially to MNO’s ongoing efforts to extend and build upon the remarkable achievements of the past 20 years in advancing Métis rights and self-government. They will greatly assist MNO in moving forward with this agenda in the years to come, as we work together to consolidate the accomplishments of those who haveCONTINUED ON PAGE 7 ... come before us, and to lay a solid foundation for those who will follow. At the conclusion of the consultation meetings, the Commissioners will, supported by the policy team and MNO legal counsel, prepare a written report to be provided to the PCMNO and then presented to the MNO AGA in August 2017.

OBJECTIVE

The primary purpose and objective of the Commission is to document, through a process of consultation with MNO citizens from across the province, Métis community members’ perspectives on MNOs governance structures; how we can better reflect Métis community, identity and culture within our governance; and how we can move forward on harvesting mobility and self-government.

The findings of the Commission, as set out in a What We Heard Report, will become an essential component and help guide MNOs broader collective effort to continue to advance Métis rights and self-government, including in its work at the federal and provincial levels.

MANDATE, ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE COMMISSION

• To engage MNO citizens and Métis communities across Ontario on issues related to Métis rights and self-government, both broadly and more specifically as the discussion relates to mobility of Métis harvesting rights.

• To provide presentations and share information on these issues, hear MNO citizens perspectives, and gather information from MNO citizens and communities on the issues previously outlined.

• With the assistance of the MNO policy team, Communications Branch and MNO legal counsel, prepare a report entitled “Advancing Métis Rights and Self-Government: What We Heard”.

• Assist the PCMNO Executive in developing a larger synthesis report and associated set of recommendations for advancing Métis rights and self-government that incorporates the findings from the MNO Commission community consultations, as summarized in the What We Heard report.

President Froh supports advances in federal reconciliation efforts

by MNO Staff

On December 15, 2016, Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) President Margaret Froh met as part of a delegation of Indigenous leaders who met with Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, Indigenous and Northern Affairs Minister Carolyn Bennett and other key members of cabinet on Parliament Hill in Ottawa. President Froh along with Métis Nation Council (MNC) Vice-President David Chartrand, Métis Nation of Alberta President Audrey Poitras and Métis Nation British Columbia President Clara Morin Dal Col attended as members of the MNC Board of Governors.

At the meeting, Prime Minister Trudeau made three announcements concerning actions to be taken by the federal government in partnership with Indigenous governments to further advance the 94 Calls to Action in the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) final report.

The first announcement concerned the creation of permanent bilateral mechanisms with the MNC and its governing members, which includes the MNO and similar mechanisms with First Nations and Inuit governments. These mechanisms will provide a Kelowna Accord-like process so that there will be ongoing annual meetings between the Prime Minister and Métis governments to develop policy on shared priorities and monitor progress on reconciliation. Similar meetings will also take place with key federal cabinet ministers at least twice per year. “The MNO is very excited about having this kind of regular access to the Prime Minister and Cabinet,” stated President Froh.

“Too long the Métis have had no tables to turn with to the federal government. The Prime Minister’s commitment to establish this new bilateral process should dramatically increase the pace of reconciliation efforts with the Métis Nation.”

The East-West Tie Electrical Transmission Project

by MNO Staff

In 2010, in anticipation of increased mining and other industrial activities in Northwestern Ontario, the Ontario Government included in their Long Term Energy Plan the development of an approximately 447 kilometer (km) transmission line north of the Lake Superior. In 2013, the Ontario Energy Board selected NextBridge Infrastructure to develop and construct this line.

The project, known as “East West Tie”, involves the installation of a double-circuit, 230 kilovolt (kV) transmission line between Wawa and Thunder Bay and the construction of a transformer station approximately mid-way, in Marathon, Ontario. While a portion of the transmission line will run parallel to the existing 230 kV transmission corridor, sections of the line will follow other routes to avoid sensitive features covered by the existing line.

Following the OEB’s designation, Nextbridge approached the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) to consult on the project and in 2014, a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) was signed with Nextbridge to enable MNO citizens in the project area to learn about the project and study any potential impacts that the project would have on the environment, Métis rights, interests and way of life. The Calliou Group (experts in Aboriginal consultation) was retained by the MNO to coordinate a Traditional Land Use Study of the project area and interviews were subsequently held with Métis knowledge holders.

At the time, the proposed route for the transmission line included a section through the Pukaskwa National Park. However in June, 2015, Nextbridge was notified by Parks Canada that this would not be permitted. As such, Nextbridge explored other potential routes for the transmission line.

Since the finalization of the new, preferred route for the transmission line, the MNO has entered into a second agreement with Nextbridge to explore the impacts of the (altered) project on Métis rights, interests and way of life. This work is already underway. In February, 2017, Calliou Group and the lands, Resources and Consultations Branch will be holding focus group sessions in Thunder Bay and Marathon, Ontario, to learn about MNO citizens’ use of the land in the project area. The results from both the previous and the current study will be included as part of MNO’s submission to Nextbridge and Ministry of Energy regarding the project.

Since the finalization of the new, preferred route for the transmission line, the MNO has entered into a second agreement with Nextbridge to explore the impacts of the (altered) project on Métis rights, interests and way of life.
MNO supports Pan-Canadian Framework on Clean Growth and Climate Change

by MNO Staff

On December 9, 2016 in Ottawa, Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) President Margaret Froh participated in a meeting of Canada’s First Ministers and Indigenous leaders on clean growth and climate change. President Froh was a member of the Métis Nation delegation along with other members of the Métis National Council (MNC) Board of Governors. In addition to the First Ministers, American Vice-President Joseph Biden participated in the meeting. “For Ontario Métis, the lands and waters of our Homelands are the heart, soul and lifeblood of our communities, identity and culture. Climate change puts at risk the living systems that nurture and sustain the health and well-being of all peoples, and it transcends political, geographic, societal, and biological divides,” stated President Froh.

The focus of the meeting was to discuss a Pan-Canadian Framework on Clean Growth and Climate Change which is the Canadian government’s proposed plan to address climate change and grow the economy. This plan was developed by federal, provincial, and territorial governments following a First Ministers meeting of March 3, 2016. The plan’s purpose is to guide the country’s transition to a more resilient, low-carbon economy that creates good paying, long-term jobs. The meeting also included First Nations and fruit leaders, was an opportunity to provide Indigenous perspectives on the framework in advance of the First Ministers meeting.

The Métis Nation of Ontario welcomes this historic framework agreement, and it looks forward to working on a nation-to-nation basis with all those with which we share these lands in order to address the challenges before us. We will work with a view of forging collaborations and partnerships, consistent with our traditional alliances and the aspirations set out in the MNO Statement of Prime Purpose.

The Pan-Canadian Framework is predicated on partnerships between all levels of government including Indigenous governments. “By working together with Ontario and Canada, as well as other Indigenous and non-Indigenous Cana-dians,” explained President Froh, “we can make a real difference while supporting both the economy and the environment. Ontario’s green energy and feed-in-tariff programs, which have helped the MNO become a significant player in the generation of green energy in Ontario, are good examples of government programs that work and have a positive impact on climate change and the economy. I want to acknowledge the leadership of Ontario Premiers Kathleen Wynne in backing these types of programs that promote green energy and more the economy away from its dependence on non-renewable energy.”

The MNO will take a leadership role in the efforts to reduce climate change by hosting our first Métis Climate Change conference in 2017/18. “Ontario Métis have a vital role to play in tackling the issues surrounding climate change,” said President Froh. “Our people often are the first to feel the effects of climate change. We are a people of the land and have always been closely connected to the land. Taking a lead in the effort to reduce climate change therefore is very much part of our Métis heritage and culture.”

“We will also work within our nation with our Métis youth, women, veterans, Elders, Captains of the Hunt, knowledge holders, elected leadership, and all interested MNO citizens toward areas of common concern on land and water protection issues, including climate change. We all have hard work ahead of us in order to create the positive change needed to save the planet we all share,” concluded President Froh.

MNO expects new proposed legislation will help revitalize Michif

by MNO Staff

Prime Minister Trudeau announced on December 6, 2016, that the federal government will soon be introducing legislation to support the preservation, protection and revitalization of Indigenous languages including Michif. Michif is the language of Métis people once spoken all across the Métis homeland. Like most Indigenous languages, the number of Michif speakers declined due to the colonization process that attempted to stamp out the use of languages other than English and French.

“Michif is an important part of our Métis heritage and culture,” stated Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) President Margaret Froh, “we are very pleased that the government is moving forward on helping to restore Indigenous languages like Michif, in keeping with the Calls to Action in the recent Truth and Reconciliation Commission Final Report.”

The Office of the Minister of Canadian Heritage, the Honourable Melanie Joly, has indicated that developing the legislation will begin with a process of engaging Métis First Nation, Inuit governments to draft an Indigenous Languages Act. The Ministry of Canadian Heritage has stated that the goal of this legislation will be to ensure the preservation, protection, and revitalization of Indigenous languages with the full input and collaboration of Indigenous peoples.

The Métis Nation of Ontario maintains a Michif Language Speaker group that has developed resources for schools and on-line to help preserve the Ontario dialect of Michif and teach young Métis their language. “We fully expect our Michif Language Speakers will be part of the development of the Indigenous Languages Act,” explained MNO Chair and Chair of the Michif Language Speakers Group France Picotte.

The proposed Indigenous Languages Act has great potential to revitalize all Indigenous languages. “We are especially pleased that Michif will be part of this revitalization process. We are very grateful to our ancestors who preserved Michif and to our Michif speakers today who will now have the opportunity to make our language flourish again,” concluded President Froh.

s 101 training for NAC staff

hanks to the ongoing work being done by the Truth and Reconciliation Commission, Indigenous stories and issues are becoming more a part of the public consciousness in Canada than ever before. At the National Arts Centre (NAC) in Ottawa, this is taking the form of a new Indigenous Theatre Department, to be headed by an Artistic Director from a First Nations, Métis, or Inuit community.

On January 17, Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) staff members presented a Métis 101 information session to staff of the NAC as part of a broader framework of Indigenous training sessions the organization is implementing in preparation for the new department. “The rest of the NAC now needs to catch up and become educated and aware of what our several histories are across this country,” says Associate Director of English Theatre (and Interim Facilitator of the new Indigenous department) Sarah Garton Stanley.

Since September the NAC has hosted one information session each month. The presentation by MNO staff was the first Métis-focused session, and introduced staff to both the history of the Métis as a people, and the life and significance of formative Métis leader Louis Riel. MNO Education Officers Alicia Moore and Wanda Botsford led a presentation that included a discussion of the role of Voyageurs in the fur trade, fiddle music, and a jigging demonstration.

NAC Manager of Education, Way of Life and Special Projects Scott Carpenter was also on hand to answer questions and provide additional knowledge. He says the Métis 101 sessions are designed to help facilitate understanding of Métis people in today’s contemporary society.

The Métis 101 session comes a few months before the NAC will host a performance of Louis Riel, an opera about Riel’s life. Written in 1967 by Canadian composer Harry Somers and co-produced with the Canadian Opera Company, the performance focuses on the events of the Red River and Northwest resistance, and is part of the NAC’s summer Canada Scene Festival 2017.

While the Métis 101 session won’t affect the content of the opera, what it will do is provide NAC support staff in the communications, programming, and marketing departments with the context to be able to promote and discuss it in a way that is authentic to the contemporary Métis experience, explained Jason Dubois, Festival Manager for Canada Scene. “There is a whole interest in professional development within the institution,” he says. “There’s sort of a narrow focus around the Louis Riel opera and a broader focus around the future plans for the NAC.”

“Like any other offering that lands on the NAC stage, we need to have some understanding and be able to talk about it, and this [opera] specifically because it has lots of history around it.”

The first season of Indigenous theatre at the NAC is slated to happen in 2019. “The reason for an Indigenous Theatre Department at the NAC is because it needs to happen,” Garton Stanley said. “Our stories, our country, this land of Canada was created out of the stories of Métis, Inuit and First Nations people, and those are the central stories of our country. We have an English theatre, we have a French theatre, and we must have an Indigenous theatre so that we’re really making sure that we’re telling the story of Canada.”

Métis Nation of Alberta and Canada sign agreement to advance Métis rights and outstanding claims in Alberta

Edmonton, AB — Tuesday, January 31, 2017

The Métis Nation of Alberta (“MNA”) has concluded a Memorandum of Understanding to Advance Reconciliation (“MOU”) with the Government of Canada. The MOU was signed yesterday by MNA President Audrey Poitras, Rev. New, MNA Co-Minister for Métis Rights and the Honourable Carolyn Bennett, Minister of Indigenous and Northern Affairs in Ottawa.

The MOU establishes a time-limited exploratory discussions table between the MNA and Canada with the goal of arriving at a mutually-agreed framework agreement by September 2017. The anticipated framework agreement would establish a formal negotiations process based on mutually agreeable subject matters, including Métis self-government, lands, rights and outstanding claims against the Crown.

The MOU comes on the heels of recent positive political and legal developments for Alberta Métis, including the Prime Minister’s November 2015 mandate letter to Minister Bennett to advance a nation-to-nation, government-to-government relationship with the Métis Nation as well as the Supreme Court of Canada’s landmark decision in Daniels v. Canada that was released in April 2016.

This MOU has been a long-time coming for Alberta Métis. For many years at the federal level, we have been on the outside looking in. This MOU opens the door for us to finally put in place the government-to-government relationship with Canada our people have sought for generations as well as begin to address the pressing issues of our citizens and communities in Alberta, including dealing with Métis rights, lands and self-government,” said President Poitras.
MNO launches first-ever household survey

by Margaret Froh, President, Métis Nation of Ontario

The Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) is proud to announce the launch of the first ever survey of approximately 20,000 registered MNO Citizens. MNO designed, delivered, and owned, the MNO Household Survey will begin in the Spring and continue throughout the Summer and Fall of 2017. The information gathered during this survey will be invaluable in increasing our understanding of priority concerns and needs of MNO Citizens and families across the province, in the areas of health, education, housing, employment, and social justice. It will do much to inform the development of our MNO programs and services, and will also play a crucial role in MNO’s collaborative work and negotiations with federal and provincial governments and other partners to address service gaps for Métis people.

As an MNO Citizen, over the coming weeks and months you will be approached directly by mail or by email to participate in the MNO Household Survey. A relatively short survey of just 20-30 minutes, we ask you to take the time to provide your input into this important data gathering effort. While the survey is completely MNO designed and delivered, the MNO has recruited the assistance of the Survey Research Centre at the University of Waterloo to help in compiling what will be a very large amount of information. In working closely with our university partners, please rest assured that all MNO Household Survey data will remain the property of our MNO Citizenry at all times, and that there are strict rules in place to protect your privacy and identity throughout every stage of the process.

The MNO Household Survey and the MNO Commission on Métis Rights and Self-Government are two key ways in which the MNO is directly engaging all of its citizens this year on the issues that are most important to our Métis families and communities across Ontario.

Your voice is important!

Help guide the MNO as we move forward in this landmark data gathering effort by completing our MNO Household Survey. The success of the survey is entirely and directly dependent upon the number of MNO citizens who take the time to respond. For this reason, all MNO citizens are strongly encouraged to respond. Your participation will benefit you, your family members, and the entire Métis community in Ontario. It is only through your ongoing efforts and your contributions that we will continue to grow and prosper as a nation, and for generations to come.

As your President, I thank you sincerely for your time and dedication in making our first MNO Household Survey a great success. I believe it will be. We will continue to keep you informed of developments throughout the process, including notifying you of the official launch date once this is finalized. Watch out for those notices on our MNO website and through our social media. Be ready to add your voice to this important, nation-wide conversation.

President Froh attends meeting of Métis Nation leaders and federal cabinet ministers

By

On January 30, 2017, Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) President Margaret Froh attended a meeting between Federal Ministers of the Crown and Métis Nation leaders to have a general discussion regarding the relationship between the Métis Nation and Canada.

The first ever Crown-Métis Nation Summit meeting was planned to be held that day between Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and the Prime Minister on December 15, 2016 to establish a permanent bilateral mechanism to advance a nation-to-nation, government-to-government relationship between Canada and the Métis Nation.

The Summit was postponed in light of the act of terrorism that took place the evening before with the shooting in a Quebec City mosque.

On behalf of all citizens of the Métis Nation of Ontario, our thoughts and prayers are with the families that have been impacted by the cowardly act of terrorism that took place in Quebec City. There is no room for hatred and intolerance in our country,” stated President Froh.

It was honoured, on behalf of the Métis Nation of Ontario, to participate in today’s discussions with key members of Prime Minister Trudeau’s Cabinet,” stated President Froh.

“There are many achievements our MNO citizens, families and communities,” said President Froh.

The Ministers were selected by the Prime Minister to attend based on the roles of their respective Ministries in advancing key priority areas of reconciliation including health, education and training, housing and new fiscal relations with the federal government.

Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and Jean-Yves Duclos, Minister of Families, Children and Social Development were unable to attend the meeting due to the tragedy in Quebec.

“The Métis Nation of Ontario continues to strengthen our role in improving the lives of Métis people in Ontario through supporting Métis community health and well-being, creating opportunity for our Métis children and youth to be the best they can be, protecting and promoting the Métis Way of Life and the environment, advancing the self-sufficiency and sustainability of our nation, and stimulating economic development for our citizens. At the heart of everything that we do are our MNO citizens, families and communities,” said President Froh.

Reflecting on the significance of the day, President Froh added, “On this day, 36 years ago on Parliament Hill, Métis Nation leaders negotiated the recognition and inclusion of the Métis as one of Canada’s Aboriginal Peoples in section 35 of the Constitution with the Government of then Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau. We will build on that legacy with this new generation of leaders and work together for a better and brighter future for our Métis Nation citizens in Ontario and for all Canadians.”

Ontario Métis: LOOKING BACK, MOVING FORWARD

Ontario Métis have made many contributions to Canada and Ontario and to recognize these many achievements during Canada’s Sesquicentennial the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) is launching 150 Ontario Métis: Looking Back, Moving Forward.

Through this special project 150 MNO citizens will share their stories about Métis history and culture and how it grounds us as we move forward into the next 150 years for Métis in Ontario.

These stories are coming soon and will be highlighted in upcoming editions of the Métis Voyageur as well as on the MNO website and social media pages.
Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) President Margaret Froh welcomed new Child and Family Services legislation

by MNO Staff

The legislation is also intended to affirm the government’s commitment to reconciliation and implementation of the Ontario Indigenous Children and Youth Strategy (OICYS) and to reflect a child and youth-centred approach. The legislation is designed to take a distinctions-based approach – recognizing that First Nations, Métis and Inuit have rights and responsibilities under the Act. It is expected to focus on unique relationships between Ontario and Métis, First Nations and Inuit people.

While the MNO intends on doing a full review of the new legislation and participating in committee hearings on the legislation, it generally sees the legislation as a positive development. President Froh stated: “The Métis Nation of Ontario sees new legislation as a step toward more effective, prevention-based approaches to improving outcomes for Métis children and youth, which is a shared interest between the MNO and the Government of Ontario as set out in our MNO-Ontario Framework Agreement. We look forward to reviewing the bill and participating in the dialogue that will follow its introduction, and to developing a stronger partnership with the Government of Ontario in the area of child and family services for the benefit of all Métis children and youth.”

PCMNO Senator appointed on Ontario’s new Elders Council

Adapted from a news release that appeared at ontario.ca

Ontario has established a new Elders Council that will provide advice to the Attorney General to improve the justice systems responsiveness to the needs of Indigenous people and support the reclamation of Indigenous legal systems.

The new Council reflects a commitment made by the province in The Journey Together: Ontario’s Commitment to Reconciliation with Indigenous Peoples (the Journey Together) and will incorporate the advice of Elders into government decision-making on matters related to Indigenous peoples in the justice system.

The Council is made up of 13 respected Indigenous Elders from diverse communities across the province and includes Provisional Council of the Métis Nation of Ontario (PCMNO) Senator Verna Porter-Brunelle. “I am honoured and very grateful to have been invited by the office of the Attorney General to be on the Council and to bring a Métis perspective to its deliberations,” she said.

“The Elders Council will help guide Ontario in its mission to support the reclamation of Indigenous legal systems and strengthen justice for Indigenous peoples in the province,” said the Honourable Yasir Naqvi, Attorney General. “I am grateful to the 13 Elders who answered this call, and I look forward to working with them.”

From November 28-30, 2016, the provincial government hosted a three-day Gladue Summit (the Summit) in Thunder Bay Senator Porter-Brunelle and Kelly Campagnola, MNO Senior Policy Advisor, both attended the Summit.

On the final day, Senator Porter-Brunelle led representatives in an opening prayer. She said that one of the most heartwarming moments of the Summit was seeing the youth not only attend the meeting but actually be active participants. “They sat at the table with us and gave their opinions and suggestions – and really good ones,” she said.

The Summit is another commitment in the Journey Together and is designed to gather input from Indigenous leaders, organizations and communities, along with justice sector representatives, to help address the overrepresentation of Indigenous people in the criminal justice system.

Moving forward, Senator Porter-Brunelle will meet with MNO President Margaret Froh, PCMNO and some of the MNO Communities for some guidance on what they would like to see at future Elders Council meetings.

The next Elders Council meeting is scheduled for this January in Sault Ste. Marie. Although the Summit meeting was a great experience, Senator Porter-Brunelle is looking forward to a more intimate meeting in the Sault with just the Elders Council.

Taking care of business

Métis Infinity Investments is off to a strong start

According to Scott Patles-Richardson, Chief Executive Officer of Métis Infinity Investments (MII), the goal of MII is to provide quality services to its business partners and to generate meaningful revenue for the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) that will ultimately create sustainable jobs for Métis people. In the last two years, MNO's start-up economic development agency has made some progress towards that objective and has even higher hopes for the future.

MII was created in 2015 and Scott Patles-Richardson hired as CEO shortly after to operationalize the MNO Prosperity and Self-Sufficiency Law that was passed at the MNO's Annual General Assembly in 2013. The Law established the mechanism that permits the MNO to establish for-profit ventures in the most tax-efficient manner while protecting itself from liability by holding its shares in the MNO Infinity Trust.

The Law also provides a formula for how the profits generated by MII will be used to advance the goals and objectives of the MNO. "MII, essentially works like a crown corporation for the MNO," explained Patles-Richardson. "We generate funds that the MNO can then use to provide services to MNO citizens and further its overall agenda."

MII is governed by professional Board of Directors with specialized experience and expertise in board and corporate governance, business, economics, banking, energy and resource development and human resources. The first quarterly Board meeting was held in March 2016. The Board of Directors are: Dr. Fred Lazar (Chair), Associate Professor, York University, Department of Economics; Schulich School of Business, Lindsay Boyd (Vice-Chair), and Brenda LaRose, Managing Partner, Ishkonigan Consulting and Media Group of Manitoba Ltd and Brenda LaRose (Vice-Chair).

MII has followed a multi-million dollar contract in an open bid process to build temporary buildings for the New Gold mining site. Five buildings were constructed including a truck shop and a maintenance shop. The project was delivered on-time, on-budget and turned a profit for MII.

MNO Sgt-at-Arms participates in Addictions and Mental Health Week in Moosonee

submitted by Joseph Paquette
MNO Veterans’ Council President

As a Sergeant with the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP), Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Veterans’ Council Sergeant-at-Arms Rob Baskey has always been very involved in the northern community of Moosonee. His work continues to bring awareness to Métis people and help promote the MNO Veterans’ Council.

Last November, the Aboriginal Peoples Alliance of Northern Ontario (APANO)—a non-profit charitable organization that provides services for Indigenous peoples, sponsored a week of events to bring awareness to addictions and mental health in the Moosonee area.

One of these events was a charity hockey game between the Moosonee Fire Department and the OPP, which included Baskey on their roster. The event took place on November 13, 2016 and began with a community breakfast. As admission to the hockey game, the OPP collected non-perishable food items, which were then donated to the Moosonee Native Friendship Centre Christmas Food Drive. Moosonee Deputy Mayor John Moore opened the hockey game with a ceremonial puck drop.

The OPP also assisted with some of the other special events for the week including: a Walk for Awareness, a screening of Gord Downie’s Secret Path, a non-profit album, and running an information booth at Northern College. They hope that their presence at events such as these will help outline their community mobilization efforts and bring awareness to residential schools, addictions and mental health issues.

MNO representatives take part in CAMA conference

submitted by Joanne Meyer, MNO Director of Intergovernmental Relations

On November 7, 2016, Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) President Margaret Froh was among MNO representatives who attended the 26th Annual Canadian Aboriginal Minerals Association (CAMA) conference in Ottawa. Also in attendance was Theresa Stenlund, PCMNO Region 1 Councilor; Ernie Gareen, PCMNO Region 4 Councilor; Joanne Meyer, MNO Director of Intergovernmental Relations; and Jason Maddren, MNO legal counsel.

CAMA was founded in 1991 with the help of Aboriginal communities, mining industry and several financial, consulting and legal groups throughout Canada. One of their key objectives is to bring Aboriginal communities together so that they can learn from each other. The focus of this year’s conference was: Embracing the Past: Mining the Present: A Rewarding Future, where they aimed to help the youth, inform industry and governments, and bring the past forward to teach future generations and ensure their futures.

President Froh was invited to participate in an Aboriginal Leadership Armchair Panel in which they discussed the direction, community needs and Aboriginal laws that should be understood when managing mineral exploration and discoveries on Aboriginal lands. The Panel also discussed how to proceed with projects regardless of the Mining Act and other legislation, and how the mining industry gets involved and complies with Indigenous laws.

MNO youth were also represented at the conference by MNO citizen Maria Vandenbrand, who works as a driller for the New Gold mining company, moderated a Youth Panel in which MNO citizen Eric Gosselin served as a Métis representative. Gosselin works for Detour Gold as a Mechanics Helper.

MNO legal counsel Jason Maddren led a session on Understanding the Supreme Court of Canada’s Decision in the Daniels Case, as well as a session on the Ministerial Special Representative Report on Métis Rights: Implications for the Resource Development Industry.

Passing on the Métis trapping tradition

By MNO Staff with files from Ontario.ca

Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) citizen Nelson Montreuil is a shining example of someone who lives and breathes his Métis culture.

Nelson Montreuil, an active citizen and currently serves as the MNO Mattawa Métis Council President and is a Commissioner on the new MNO Commission on Métis Rights and Self-Government. He is also an avid Métis harvester and is proud to continue the tradition of Métis trapping within his own family—a way of life that has been passed down to him from his ancestors.

Nelson has been trapping in the Mattawa area since 1980 on the same waterways used by his family since the 1870s. Nelson’s grandfather was a Métis trapper and a canoe builder. Although he never got the chance to trap with them, he grew up hearing stories of his grandfather and great grandfathers’ trapping adventures. He is happy to be carrying on this Métis tradition and that he is able to pass it on to his son and grandchildren.

“I carry out the same traditions in hunting, guiding, canoeing and trapping that my Métis ancestors used many generations ago,” said Nelson. “To be able to say that I am Métis and am continuing on the tradition of harvesting that goes back to the mid-1700s is pretty special.”

Nelson’s registered trap line in Ontario is approximately 100 square miles and runs along the Antoine Creek and is between the historic Mattawa and Ottawa River watershed near Mattawa. Nelson traps beaver, muskrat, mink, otter, fisher, martin, weasel and fox. He also hunts deer and moose.

Trappers are only allowed to trap during open seasons. Nelson says that trapping has three distinct seasons: the fall season, the transition from rain to snow, and the solidification of ice. A skilled trapper will know how to modify the way in which they trap during each season in order to be successful in their efforts.

At the beginning of the trapping season, Nelson says it takes him close to two weeks to lay out all of his traps. Trapping requires dedication and physical traps must be checked often so that the animals do not spoil or get taken by other animals. Nelson says he checks his traps every two to three days depending on outside temperatures—covering nearly 120 km to complete his route!

Trapping also requires expert knowledge of the land as you need to be able to study your territory to know the best spot to lay traps. Nelson says that “once you learn the land, you know where you should be looking. The beaver will give you signs that he is there. You learn that with experience.” He also adds that “most of your time is spent alone in the elements—no cell or help—safety is extremely important.”

When asked if he uses GPS coordinates to remember the exact location of his traps, Nelson laughed and said that he simply uses his memory. He explained that “you learn to have that type of memory or you’re going to be a poor trapper. It’s either in you or it’s not.”

Harvesting and trapping for Nelson is more than just catching animals. Through harvesting, Nelson says that he is able to find a spiritual connection with the land and his Métis ancestors in a way unlike anything else.

“For our Métis ancestors, harvesting meat was the only means of survival during the winter months,” he says. “Our ancestors did not have the luxury of being able to go to the grocery store to purchase meat. Instead, Métis people had to learn how to survive in the bush and harvest meat in order to feed themselves and their families.”

Nelson says that the passing on of these traditions that were so essential to Métis people is sadly not that common. He points out that there is the need to pass on “not just the knowledge of harvesting meat but the traditions and knowledge of harvesting as well.”

Nelson continues to work very hard and says, “To be able to say that I am Métis and am continuing on the tradition of harvesting that goes back to the mid-1700s, is pretty special.”

to ensure that he is doing his part to pass on this vital Métis tradition and knowledge to his own family. Some of the fondest memories he has of trapping includes moments he has shared with his family such as when his sons shot their first partridge, moose and deer.

He has also enjoyed bringing his grandchildren out into the bush with him. Even though his grandson is only five years old, he says that he is able to help him hunt animals and drag them out of the bush. As he likes to put it, “when they are old enough to walk, they are old enough to carry a muskrat!” All harvesting activities are done as a family unit and include jobs such as wood cutting for heat, trapping, or meat for the winter, guiding, canoeing and repair work. Through activities such as these, Nelson says that children learn not to fear the bush and are instead taught to respect nature.

Nelson says that it is so vital for his grandchildren and the youth of today to witness first-hand this circle of life as “they learn that food doesn’t just come from a grocery store, it comes from the forest. Most importantly, they learn that it’s not about the kill, but it’s about the animal giving its life for us to survive.” Nelson says that he has also taught his grandchildren how to prepare the meat, ensuring that the highest amount of respect is always given to the animal.

In addition to trapping, Nelson and his wife are also the proud owners of Algonquin North Wilderness Outfitter—a tour company that runs guided canoe tours and canoe rentals in the Mattawa/Algonquin Park area. The family-owned and operated business opened their doors in 1997 to fulfill the need for an outfitting company in the Mattawa area. Nelson knew that with his knowledge of canoeing and wife’s knowledge of Algonquin Park, they were sure to succeed.

Twenty years later and their business is still going strong! Nelson is thrilled that his son Logan Montreuil has shown an interest in carrying on the business. Logan currently manages the day-to-day business and also refinishes the older canoes.

Every trapper that harvests fur must have a trapping licence, which helps ensure that tracking is regulated. Trapping in Ontario is governed by the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry (MNRF). At this time, the MNO does not have a trapping agreement with the MNRF. MNO representatives recognize the work of Wendy Landry

submitted by Jean Camirand, MNO Thunder Bay Métis Council President

The grand opening of a special room at the Union Gas office in Thunder Bay was the occasion for a presentation by Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) representatives to Wendy Landry, Union Gas First Nations, Métis and Municipal Affairs Manager and former President of the MNO Thunder Bay Métis Council (TBMC).

On September 7, 2016, Union Gas held a special ceremony to unveil a new room dedicated to Indigenous peoples. The room opening included a cleansing ceremony and a prayer. In attendance were MNO TBMC Jean Camirand and Chair Robert Graham, as well as PCMNO Region 2 Counsellor Cameron Burgess.

The close ties between Union Gas and many Indigenous communities are the direct result of Wendy's incredible work. As a way to recognize her hard work, at the culmination of the ceremony, Government Relations Manager and former President of the MNO Thunder Bay Métis Council presented Wendy with the MNO Honouring Métis Women Shawl. He says it was an incredible honour to be involved in the presentation.

Wendy's efforts have helped the MNO achieve a presence in Thunder Bay as local politicians now automatically include the MNO when any of their addresses include the local Fort William First Nations.

While MNO TBMC President, Wendy maintained a full time job at Lakehead University where she was involved in several women's organizations, raised a family of six, and was elected as the Mayor of the township of Shamania! When Union Gas hired Wendy to fill their Aboriginal Liaison position, the MNO was happy to gain a strong Métis voice within the company.

President Camirand says that Wendy is a most remarkable Métis lady and a most deserving recipient of the MNO Honouring Métis Women Shawl. He says it was an incredible honour to be involved in the presentation.

Project underway to collect and preserve Métis traditional knowledge

by Craig Bakay, Frontenanews.ca

It's a huge project, but Candace Lloyd, Secretary-Treasurer of the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) High Land Waters Métis Council is optimistic that a project to map and preserve Traditional Knowledge and Land Use as it pertains to the Métis way of life is doable and worthwhile.

The Métis way of life represents all aspects of "being Métis," including a tightly woven relationship with the environment for food, spiritual and cultural fulfillment, medicine and ceremony.

The idea of the project is to interview members of the Métis community about all aspects of traditional knowledge and land use and then preserve that knowledge with map overlays and videos, for use by future generations.

The MNO High Land Waters Council is responsible for an area that stretches from Cardiﬀ in the northwest, down to Trenton and Prince Edward County, over to Kingston (including Frontenac Islands) and up to Smiths Falls in the northeast.

Last Saturday, Lloyd, along with her Council, grant proposal writer Darlene Loh, interview/videographer Ashley Lloyd and MNO Traditional Knowledge coordinator Markus Tuomimaa and MNO GIS specialist Steve Gautreau held a workshop in Flinton to collect information and get the word out.

Lloyd said there are many benefits to such a project. Not only will knowledge be preserved, it will also serve as reference and educational material.

"We will be able to say you're not going to find gingernut here and suggest that a potential wind or solar project be moved slightly because it's on a moose trail or blueberry patch," Lloyd said.

Tuomimaa said this is how they use the lands and waters.

"There has always been an oral history tradition," said Gautreau. "Now we're doing actual mapping of things like where the stories took place, where and what animals were hunted and where and what plants were gathered."

He said they try to maintain a certain amount of confidentiality but generally they're interested in game harvesting, fishing, trapping line, plants and natural medicines, access points and cultural sites.

"It's not a free-for-all knowledge thing," Lloyd said. "But we would like to know things like this-is-a-moose trail or this-is-a-rabbit swamp. If it flies, swims, walks or you can pick it, that's the information we want."

Lloyd said they're also hopeful this will lead to jobs for Métis people. "Who better to work on solar projects or mines than someone who knows the land?" she concluded.

MNO Council youth learn First Aid

submitted by Larry J. Ferris, MNO Georgian Bay Métis Council Chair

Eight youth from the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Georgian Bay Métis Council (GBMC) can now provide First Aid to their fellow citizens, following a training event on December 29, 2016.

The young people who attended the event are now certified First Aiders. The First Aid certification attendees received is recognized by the Workplace Safety and Insurance Board. The event was funded by a grant from New Path Youth and Family Services of Simcoe County—the lead agency in Simcoe County for Moving on Mental Health.

All of the MNO GBMC youth passed with high marks. "It is inspiring to see our future Métis citizens in action. We are in very good hands and we all should be proud of them," says MNO GBMC Chair Larry J. Ferris.

The training included CPR, injury identification, patient care and how to help people who are choking, having a stroke or having a heart attack. Attendees also learned how to use automatic defibrillators.

The event was an excellent opportunity for Métis youth to learn a skill that looks great on a résumé. It also means that the MNO GBMC is safer with eight more people trained to provide First Aid.

Young Métis helps with school presentation

submitted by Jennifer Parkinson, President, MNO Grand River Métis Council

In November 10, 2016, the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Grand River Métis Council (GRMC) President Jennifer Parkinson was invited into Briga-doon Public School in Kitchener to talk to two grade five classes about Métis Culture and History. When the second class entered the library, President Parkinson was delighted to see her friend, Hunter Bellinger, a Métis youth.

Hunter was proudly wearing his Métis sash. When asked if he wanted to tell his class about the Métis sash, he got up and explained what the Métis sash colours meant and the many uses of the sash. At the end of the presentation, Hunter used his sash to demonstrate the Métis tug-of-war to his classmates. President Parkinson was delighted to have Hunter be part of the presentation.
MNO youth attends We Belong conference

submitted by
Wendy Stewart, MNO Manager of Mental Health and Addictions

O n November 17-19, 2016, Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) youth Rodrigue Turgeon and Wendy Stewart, MNO Manager of Mental Health and Addictions, attended the We Belong conference held in Vancouver along with other Métis National Council (MNC) delegates and Indigenous youth. This international conference focused on life promotion to address Indigenous suicide.

"My fire to keep driving for answers about my culture and history is recharged as I come out of this conference," said Turgeon. "Culture is so important when it comes to mental health and wellness."

Among an impressive delegation of Indigenous community members from across the globe, the conference highlighted how culture is at the foundation for making a difference in social equality, life promotion and for shifting the way we think about supporting Indigenous families across a lifespan.

Two days prior to the conference, Turgeon, along with other youth from across the country, attended a retreat on current mental health issues within communities and future directions on their roles in facilitating wellness and life promotion. Much of these discussions were subsequently tabled at the We Belong conference, driving change in how Indigenous youth want to be engaged in leading initiatives for the wellness of their communities. In addition to being a fruitful opportunity to network and share knowledge, Stewart says that the Conference left both her and Turgeon with renewed energy and ideas to promote and support Métis community wellness. Stewart plans on sharing this knowledge with leaders within the MNO community.

Turgeon resides in MNO Region 5 and is involved in MNO Youth programming. She is currently studying Indigenous Social Work at Laurentian University.

Melanie Rose, MNO Mattawa Métis Council Secretary/Treasurer

T he Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Mattawa Métis Council (MMC) held their Annual General Meeting (AGM) this past October, which included a very special item on their agenda. During the meeting, the Council was pleased to present Shawn Chorney, Vice-President of Student Services, Recruitment, Enrolment Management and Marketing at Canadore College, with a cheque for $10,000, which will go towards the newly established Mattawa Métis Endowed Bursary. The bursary will be available at Canadore College in particular as the college has a centre for the Métis Nation and their families for the secondary programming at Canadore.

The scholarship amount issued will be dependent on academic performance and financial need. Students enrolled in any year level are eligible to receive the scholarship.

"Canadore was invited out here today to the AOM to receive a generous contribution towards the establishment of a scholarship for our students," said Chorney. "We're pleased to receive an additional $10,000 to the fund so we can invest in students who have recently graduated from our high schools in Mattawa—either École secondaire catholique Elisabeth-Bruyère or FJ McClung Secondary School, and are enrolled at Canadore College in North Bay."

The scholarship amount issued will be dependent on academic performance and financial need. Students enrolled in any year level are eligible to receive the scholarship.

"The college has a centre which shows students jobs that are in demand for the Métis workforce. If they take these certain courses, it is going to help guarantee them a job in the next couple years."

 submits an application for the Gets your education dont. "When I'm gone and the Council is gone, that money will always be here."

MNO MMC Chair Rodney Rose explained that Sudbury Integrated Nickel Operations, a Glencore Company, which has an existing partnership with the MNO, gave $10,000 to the Council last year in order to help the community provide different support and resources. She explained that the Council decided to establish the Mattawa Métis Endowed Bursary in order to help Métis students in the community throughout their college years.

Rose explained that the Council decided to donate the money to Canadore College in particular as the college has a centre that will provide information and resources, which shows students jobs that are in demand for the Métis workforce. If they take these certain courses, it is going to help guarantee them a job in the next couple years. So that is what we are trying to encourage—people from the Mattawa area to stay within the community and not be far from home. We're hoping to be able to donate at least $5,000 a year and our end goal being $100,000."

"It is a very great time for the Mattawa Métis citizens to be able to give a long lasting education fund for the students," said Nelson Montreuil, MNO MMC President. "When I'm gone and the Council is gone, that money will always be here."

MNO MMC Chair Rodney Rose said that he is proud of what the Council "has achieved in the past four years. Our elections are coming up next April and we would like to have four or five more people on the board to help us out with different ideas and projects."

Romeo Sarracin, MNO MMC Senator, explained that the Council would like to encourage local Métis youth to get more involved. "One of us will be going to high schools and talking to the kids to try and encourage them to come to these meetings so we can find out what they want, what ideas they have, and to show them the support that they can get for things like education, for example."

MNO Council performs smudging ceremonies at local schools

submitted by Cecile Wagar, MNO Oshawa and Durham Region Métis Council

Like other school boards across the province, the Durham Catholic District School Boards (DCDSB) focus this year is to incorporate more Indigenous ways of learning at all grade levels and in all subjects. In keeping with this mandate, the DCDSB have sought the knowledge of Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Oshawa and Durham Region Métis Council (ODRMC) Senator Cecile Wagar and Women’s Representative Claire Kearns who have been active members on local Indigenous Education Advisory Circles for over six years.

At the beginning of the school year, Senator Wagar was invited to smudge DCDSB school administrators and members of the school board. Senator Wagar and Kearns were also invited to smudge the staff at Notre Dame Catholic Secondary School (NDCSS) in Ajax to end their November Professional Development Day.

Smudging is a cleansing ritual practiced by First Nations and some Métis people. It is a practice where you burn a single or a combination of sacred medicines, which include sweet grass, sage, tobacco and cedar. The smoke that is created is then directed over an individual’s body, with particular attention usually being focused on one’s head, eyes, ears and heart.

MNO GRMC attend First Peoples Festival

submitted by Rebecca Leitch, MNO GRMC Youth Representative

On September 27-29, 2016, The Métis Nation of Ontario (MNG) Grand River Métis Council (GRMC) took part in the First Peoples Festival at the Waterloo Regional Museum. Twelve hundred students ranging from grades six to twelve engaged in presentations on dance, music, games and crafts. Elder Lois Mac-Donald and MNO GRMC President Jennifer Parkinson spoke at the opening ceremonies. The festival was a partnership with First Nations, Métis and Inuit communities to engage students in traditional Indigenous cultural teachings and activities.

MNO GRMC Councillors Leslie Muma, Colleen Brunelle, Rebecca Leitch, Alicia Hamilton and Sandy O’Brien encouraged students to try their hand at the dot art workshop. Students learned that dot art is inspired by traditional beadwork, which earned Métis the name “flower beadwork people.” Students created beautiful multi-coloured pictures featuring the Métis flag, flowers, buffalo and turtles.

In addition, students participated in a Trapping Workshop led by MNO citizen Jim Toliss, Métis Voyageur games led by MNO Community Relations Manager Hank Rowlison and Region 9 Education and Training Coordinator Scott France.

President Jennifer Parkinson joined First Nations representatives in the ‘First Peoples 101’ panel discussions. Students were encouraged to ask any questions about First Nation, Métis and Inuit culture and heritage and they very much enjoyed the day.

T he Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Toronto and York Region Métis Council (TYRMC) celebrated Louis Riel Day this year at two fantastic events!

Toronto City Hall Celebration

On Wednesday November 16, 2016, the MNO TYRMC hosted a Louis Riel Day Celebration in collaboration with the City of Toronto. This year approximately 60 individuals joined in on the celebration, including MNO TYRMC Councilors, members of the Provincial Council of the Métis Nation of Ontario (PCMNO), Toronto City Councilors Mike Layton and Kristyn Wong-Tam and several media sources.

MNO Credit River Métis Council hosts Riel Day in Orangeville

submitted by Andrea Jibb, Community Outreach Coordinator, MNO Credit River Métis Council

As most Métis people know, Louis Riel Day marks an important moment in Métis history. While November 16 is the anniversary of the execution of Louis Riel in 1885, the Métis people have embraced this day as a time to celebrate the contributions of Louis Riel to the Métis as a rights-bearing Indigenous people. On November 19, 2016, the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Credit River Métis Council (CRM) hosted its annual Louis Riel Day gathering at St. John’s Anglican Church in Orangeville. This was the first time the celebration had been held outside of Mississauga because the Council wanted to acknowledge citizens and friends who live in the more northern part of the Council’s catchment area. Despite some of the first snowy weather of the season, the gathering was well attended and Council members met many new citizens and friends.

Louis Riel Day is a time when Métis people celebrate their history and share with the community. The annual CRM’s gathering included a pot luck meal as sharing food is a cornerstone of Métis culture. There were many traditional foods shared at the meal, including bison sliders, freshly harvested moose meat, which was generously donated by Joe Paquette. The display of foods was truly impressive (not to mention delicious!) and would not have been possible without the contributions of the partygoers and the time volunteers tirelessly worked in the kitchen. A special dinner blessing was offered by MNO citizen Reverend Riscylla Shaw, the daughter of MNO Senator Ruth Wagner. (See story about Reverend Shaw on page 31.)

Although many people were just meeting each other for the first time, it felt as though the meal was being shared among family. It would not be a true Métis gathering without music and dancing! A number of excellent musicians helped to create a festive atmosphere with musical performances. These included Silver and Gold Minstrels, fiddlers Peggy Wharrick and a fiddling performance by Kim and Rajan Anderson,流感 vaccine for the first time at the gathering. Heather Hope and Jane Bell facilitated dancing! A number of excellent performers entertained the crowd moving!

Traditional knowledge was shared by Taani Sheldon who gave a presentation on Inuit culture and drumming. Information tables were provided by the Peel District School Board, Local Health Integration Network and the Métis Nation of Ontario Veterans’ Council. A special presentation was made on behalf of MNO CRM to MNO Veterans’ Council President Joe Paquette to provide support for the 2017 MNO Veterans’ Council Youth-Veterans Vimy Ridge Memorations project. Senator Bill Morrison provided a special “Senator’s thanks” to MNO CRM Treasurer Darlene Lent for her exceptional work and commitment to the Council.

This event would not have been possible without the support of MNO CRM’s community partners, including the Local Health Integration Network, the Métis Nation of Ontario staff, the Ontario Trillium Foundation and the Peel District School Board. Special thanks to Heather Hope and Jane Bell, St. John’s Anglican Church and all the volunteers. It could not have done it without you!

Angel Ornament workshops held in Sudbury and Thorold

submitted by
Nancy Martel, MNO Community Support Services Coordinator
Terry Lyn Longpre, NO Community Health Worker

On November 29, 2016, the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Community Support Services (CSS) brought together community members in Sudbury to create Guardian / Earth Angel Ornaments while discussing loss and grief. This workshop identified ways in which individuals can cope with grief and loss. This allowed the participants to better understand the grief and loss process in order to facilitate healing.

Nancy Martel, the MNO CSS Coordinator spoke about loss and grief during the workshop and while the participants were creating their own ornaments they had the time to share their own personal stories with the group. It gave them the opportunity to share their experiences with loss and grief. One helpful thing that came out of this workshop was that many of the participants mentioned that they found it helpful to join groups such as knitting groups, exercise clubs or become involved with community events in order to prevent social isolation.

To take part in the workshop participants were asked to bring a small picture of a loved one or bring in a small item that has special meaning to them. The MNO provided a Christmas ball that could be taken apart and angel trinkets. Other materials such as fake snow and branches were also provided. Glue guns were required so the person could create their ornament. The main idea was for the participants to put the picture made half of the Christmas bulb. They could glue the snow in and add branches or the trinkets then add the other half of the bulb creating the Guardian/Earth Angel Christmas bulb ornament.

The workshop was well received by the twelve women that participated. A similar activity was held on Friday, December 9, 2016, at the MNO Thornold office. This Métis Earth Angel Ornaments workshop was initiated by the MNO Victim Services Program and involved creating Christmas ornaments as a symbol for honouring and remembrance of a loved one.

As the participants creatively worked on their ornaments, MNO staff spoke about our spirits and how this treasured keepsake can be used as a physical reminder that the spirits of our loved ones are ever present in our lives. One of the highlights of the workshop was the peace and harmony felt in the room and of course the finished Métis Earth Angel ornaments.

MNO Council ends 2016 with a potluck dinner

submitted by
Donna Grayer, MNO Windsor-Essex-Kent Métis Council

On Dec 13, 2016, the Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Windsor-Essex-Kent Métis Council (WEKMC) ended the year on a good note with a potluck community dinner meeting. In addition to the Council, also in attendance were a few MNO staff and other MNO citizens.

The menu included a great selection complete with traditional wild game stew, bannock, healthy dips and salads and MNO WEKMC Councilor Robert Desjardins’ cabbage rolls, which became an instant favourite that night! During the meeting, MNO staff provided guests with information on various MNO programs and also introduced a few of the newly hired Métis Family Wellbeing Coordinators. A good conversation ensued and the Council hopes to be able to promote and support their hard work within the community.

MNO WEKMC President Donna Grayer gifted members of the Council and guests with her version of beaded ornaments to hang on the tree. The surprise of the evening came when MNO WEKMC Senator Jim Turner gifted fellow Council members—Interim Chair Terry Desjardins and Secretary-Treasurer Jon Rochon, with beautiful designed and hand carved hatchets and pipes that he made for them. They had a conversation in the past about making them together, but Senator Turner decided to surprise them with the finished gifts. We are hoping this conversation about moccasins brings future surprises as well, as he is a very talented artist.

It was a night of good food, sharing of the varied histories while finding our connections. There were of course many laughs. A decision had also been made that we use this time to collect donations for the local mission. As suggested by Women’s Representative Sharily, socks, gloves and bars, and enough money to pay for 19 meals at Christmas were collected. A donation was also made to the Standing Rock defence fund.

MNO WEKMC looks forward to the New Year, knowing that moving ahead there will be many good opportunities to grow, learn, and most importantly build good foundations for the future.

The MNO WEKMC are grateful for the hard work of all involved, from the Executive level to the behind the scenes shakers and movers. Enjoy 2017! The Council hopes to host a larger celebration early in 2017, which will include as many MNO citizens as possible.
Spreading some Christmas Cheer
submitted by
Larry J. Ferris, MNO Georgian Bay Métis Council Chair

The Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Georgian Bay Métis Council (GBMC) helped out this Christmas with the annual Christmas Cheer. Two volunteer elves from the MNO GBMC (Danielle and Joanne) put together wonderful packages again this year. The MNO GBMC Christmas elves always try to improve the Christmas spirit. This year six families with 14 children were identified to the Christmas elves. The elves provided gift certificates as well as toys and wrapping paper. Larry Ferris, volunteer, delivered one family’s Christmas Package. “I was amazed at the reaction of the parents. The Christmas spirit must run from one of them and they were feeling happy. I cannot imagine how hard it must be for some parents to try and give their children a good Christmas with the challenges some people are facing,” said Larry. These ladies did their best and lifted a lot of people Christmas spirits. For the ladies they said it was an absolute joy and look forward to doing it next year. Well done ladies and thanks for the coal! ⭐️

MNO Council offers Hunter Safety Course
submitted by
Larry J. Ferris, MNO Georgian Bay Métis Council Chair

The Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Georgian Bay Métis Council (GBMC) Harvesters Committee held another Hunter Safety Course on the weekend of the January 14-15, 2017. A good mixture of Métis youth and women participated in the course. Out of nine students, four were female. All participants did well and passed the course with excellent marks. There were students as young as 14 participating and they all did very well.

The students took the Federal Firearms Safety course for the safe handling and storage of firearms and the laws regarding firearms. It will allow them to apply for their Possession and Acquisition (PAL) licence. The students also took the Hunter Safety Provincial course that covered shot placement, First Aid and survival, ecology and hunting techniques. Passing this course qualified for a Provincial Hunting Licence that can be used to hunt in non-traditional areas.

It was nice to hear one of the young women were looking forward to getting one of her grandfather’s guns so she could go hunting with her father and carry on the family tradition.

Good luck to all our new hunters! ⭐️

MOCC WALK raises awareness about diabetes
submitted by
Louise Cloutier, MNO Community Support Services Coordinator

Over the last four years, Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Community Support Services program clients, co-workers and community participants in Timmins have participated in a walking program called MOCC WALK. The MOCC WALK takes place during the months of May and June. This challenge encourages everyone to be active and have fun while promoting awareness about diabetes.

In 2016, 13 teams of four made up of men, women and children participated in the MOCC WALK. This challenge is tracked through a point system, tracked on a calendar that is provided to each participant. One point is given for each ten minutes of walking and the more points you gain, the better the chances participants have to win prizes from the Ontario Native Women’s Association (ONWA) Aboriginal Diabetes Program in Thunder Bay. This year some of the great prizes include, a Spurt Walking Pole, a Fit Bit, a bicycle, as well as $25.00 and $15.00 gift cards. Every year participants from Timmins have been awarded a prize. Participants can enter by themselves or in teams and can walk anywhere, on the treadmill, outside, at the mall or any other location. Each year MOCC WALK has been a great success.

If you would like to participate in the MOCC WALK this year please contact Louise Cloutier at the MNO office in Timmins. She can be reached at 1-705-224-3839 extension 227. Advance registration is required. If you want to make a difference or show examples of families gather your families, your co-workers or friends and get mov-

MNO citizen becomes a Bishop of the Anglican Church

by MNO Staff

Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Citizen and daughter of Honourary MNO Senator Ruth Wagner Riscylla Shaw was recently installed as a Bishop of the Anglican Church of Canada. Bishop Shaw is one of the first Métis to achieve this high position in any Christian Church in Canada.

Métis Voyageur March 2017, Issue no. 94

Honorary Senator Ruth Wagner Shaw was among three Anglican clergy who were consecrated by the consecration. Bishop Shaw was recently installed as a Bishop within the Anglican Church of Canada. Bishop Shaw grew up with her three siblings on a farm in a small community north of Bracebridge, Ontario. “As farmers, we were connected to the land in dynamic and life-bringing ways, developing valuable knowledge in methods of caring for the earth, learning about crops and animals, and our natural cycles in relationship to abundance, scarcity and resource allocation,” she recalled.

After completing high school in Bracebridge, Bishop Shaw attended the University of Toronto where she completed undergraduate studies in French and the Humanities. She then received three years of intensive and comprehensive ministry training at Wycliffe College in Toronto in 1999. Following a few years of youth ministry, she was ordained a priest in 2001 and lived and served in the Parishes of Maple, Minden-Kinmount and most recently the Parish of Bolton, all in the Diocese of Toronto.

When asked about the importance of her Métis heritage, Bishop Shaw commented: “I am so proud to be the daughter of MNO Honourary Senator Ruth Wagner. She, along with my late Métis Grandfather, Oliver Chick, taught me to wear my faith out loud – as a strong believer in equal opportunities and equal treatment of each and all. As a result, I bring with me deep respect and humility in working to build bridges between diverse cultures and communities. ”

“Being Métis, I have a built-in cross-cultural perspective. Now, as a newly ordained Bishop in the Anglican Church of Canada, I am attuned to looking for the mysterious beauty and reconciling love of our Creator, as revealed in the mundane and in the miraculous of every day,” she continued.

“As Métis, as a Bishop my goals are intertwined. I am motivated to advocate for, and work with the marginalized – the Indigenous, the LGBTQ, the down-trodden, the poor, the lonely, the oppressed, the broken. My life’s work is about networking, broadening relationships and community building. Being Métis informs my worldview, in building inter-cultural bridges, valuing diversity and practising radical inclusion,” she added.

Over the past six years Bishop Shaw has served as a witness and an Ambassador for the Anglican Church for Canada’s National Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC). “It was very important for me to be there [at the TRC Commission] both personally and professionally - for my Métis and Canadian heritage, to understand the history of my church, my country and my people. I am proud to be in a church that makes reconciliation and justice for marginalized peoples a priority. Inspired by Archbishop Desmond Tutu in South Africa’s TRC, I am working to interpret the findings of the TRC to the church and the broader community by building bridges,” she explained.

“That is part of carrying the weight of the clergy collar, walking in two worlds - when sometimes, the institution and the Gospel have not been in harmony with one another. Now it is my responsibility and my joy to help bring forward Reconciliation in the church, in our families, in our communities, in my work with national church officials and with our First Nations, Inuit and Métis sisters and brothers. Making connections from coast to coast to coast and teaching others to look at and deal with the hard stuff with respect and courage,” she concluded.

“Being Métis informs my worldview, in building inter-cultural bridges, valuing diversity and practising radical inclusion.”

Stand up if you are Métis: No, not you!

submitted by Senator Bill Morrison, MNO Credit River Métis Council

I stand as a community, we are going through some very difficult times as people. The issues which we had fought for with years, as children, seem to be rearing their heads once more. Identity was always a problem for me personally I lived in a rather extended family household of mixed blood ancestors. Most of the members were Cree but we had some nationalities of Scots, Irish and American, with religious commitments of Anglican, Jewish, United, Pentecostal and Catholic. As adults they seemed to get along just fine but towards the children there was always a line of disdain and segregation by the parents to the children. The grandchildren, great aunts and uncles all supported and cared for the children but the parents were in a different position, with issues of trying to fit in with society and the stigma of not being European enough.

These pressures were often introduced to the household on almost a daily occurrence. I witnessed these problems not only in my home and community but also the homes of my closest friends. There was a spread substance abuse (we called it drunkenness), domestic violence (wife beating and child bearing), sexual assault (rape), and questionable moral conduct (numerous children were the result of different relationships). But, these were the times.

I have always hoped my history was different and hoped that other children did not need to live the horrors of the mixed blood (Métis) life. This was our community and as children we were severely punished for the lives our parents were living. Yes, the men were held up by the community as heroes, role models, and icons of the festivals. They were trappers, men of the land and bush. They were full of spirit, which so many have talked about recently, but at home or next door and certainly at the homes of relatives there was a violent insecure man who would beat his spouse and children. Many of these ‘heroes’ were on restricted visiting privileges from time to time and of course did spend time in the local jail for their mischief (nothing serious to this community). The witnessing of battered women, bruised, battered and scared children did not generate a romantic image of my Métis men. Rather, it was the women (young and elderly) in our lives who gave us the ground- work to be better people. We often told each other “he is a good man when he is not drinking”, but we rarely saw that man. His absence and her strength helped us to maintain the faith in the family and spirit of community for this mixed blood (Métis) way of life.

It was through these women that we were taught how to trap, skin, cook, harvest, make toques and sew up shirts out of sugar bags.

The Jake Gaudaur Bridge does exist

submitted by Micheline Marchand, Métis Citizen

The Jake Gaudaur Memorial Bridge does exist according to Orillian and Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) citizen Frank Kehoe—a descendant of Antoine Gaudaur and great-nephew of Métis Jake Gaudaur. He should know He was there in 1965 when Ontario-Premier John Robarts officially opened the bridge. He wasn’t alone. Many descendants of Jake Gaudaur, as well as ex-premier Leslie Frost among the dignitaries, and hundreds of other people attended the celebration. According to an article that appeared in the August 25th 1965 edition of the Orillia Daily Packet and Times, the Ontario Department of Highways recognized structures by numbers, so it took much convincing to name the bridge Jake Gaudaur to commemorate the world champion sculler. It may have been a proud moment for Orillia and the Gaudaur family. In response to the publication of my article Does the Jake Gaudaur Bridge really exist? on the MNO website and in The Métis Voyageur newspaper (October 2016, no. 92, pp. C22-C23), Mr. Kehoe contacted me to tell me this story. He said that the picture of the well-at- tended ribbon-cutting event made it to the front page of the August 25th 1965 edition of the Daily Packet and Times. Mr. Kehoe dug into the archives and sent me the written proof—a copy of the first page of the paper and an article entitled Traffic, Piles Up As Bridge Becomes Gaudaur Memorial. Here’s how it starts: “It’s finally official. The new bridge across the Narrows is named the Jake Gaudaur Memorial Bridge. Ontario Premier John Robarts Tues- day opened the $600,000 structure in the presence of the world scull- ing champion’s sons and daughters, officials and several hundred spec- tators. As the ceremony was under way, traffic piled up on each side of the bridge, causing what may be the last traffic jam on the bridge.”

Thanks to the memory of Mr. Frank Kehoe, I now know that the Jake Gaudaur Bridge does exist. However, even though Orillians call the bridge by its name, the province doesn’t seem to thus. Jake Gaud- au Bridge should be clearly and categorically acknowledged if it is to be remembered for many other generations.

President Froh stated: “Patricia was one of the courageous people who stepped forward when the MNO was in its early days. She had the vision to see what the MNO could become and achieve. I know all MNO citizens are truly grateful her contributions and leadership.” Lipinski described Patricia as an early contributor and pioneer in the development of the MNO and the advancement of Métis rights. He stated: “Pat was a strong outspoken Métis woman with a strong connection to the land. A hunter and markswoman in her day, trapping with her partner Reg and her always loving the grandchildren; she brought these grassroots issues and concerns into the provincial dialogue, truly an amazing Métis woman and leader.”

Brittle

I’ll make you feel uneasy to the groove,
You’ll watch each step, your every move
Unbalanced, slow pace you must proceed
Unsteady task for you to heed
I am clear but sometimes black
Wise to purchase a salt sack
I sometimes come without warning
A skating rink type of morning
Get up early to sand those walks
On my window something knocks
Wakey wakey I am here
Like headlights to a deer
I will make you feel a little rocky Underfoot like blades and hockey
Diamond covered branches wear a frown
I weigh the limbs till they bend down
Brace yourself, a fall brings pain
I weigh the limbs till they bow down

MNO councils are important communication hubs that play a significant role in fostering community empowerment and development for MNO citizens living within the geographic territory of that council.

Since December, the following MNO community councils have had elections. Thanks and congratulations go to all the candidates who participated in these elections and to the new council members listed below:

MNO Temiskaming Métis Council

Fun with Bob McKay

submitted by Tim Pile, MNO Secretary-Treasurer

On December 12, 2016, a number of friends of former MNO Thunder Bay Métis Council Senator Bob McKay and his wife Gloria stopped by their home in Thunder Bay to spread some Christmas cheer.

Special thanks to Ashley, Jem, Lena and Dave for the great music and entertainment they provided Bob and Gloria. There were some great toe-tapping tunes with some additional spoon percussion provided by Tim. Tim, Bob and Gloria expressed their appreciation and thanks for a great evening of entertainment from these very talented musicians.

Bob (aka Brad Pitt) also recently received the large get well card that was signed by everyone at the MNO Annual General Assembly in North Bay this August. Bob was very grateful to receive everyone’s well wishes.

Excitement is building for the 2017 Métis Nation of Ontario (MNO) Annual General Assembly (AGA) taking place in Kenora from August 19-21. “Our council is looking forward to hosting the whole MNO,” stated MNO Kenora Métis Council President Joel Henley, “we are going to show everyone what northern hospitality is all about.”

Kenora is the gateway to the world renowned Lake of the Woods, which is best known for its pristine and rugged landscape that stretches across a number of shorelines to a vast undisturbed wilderness area. With 14,542 islands stretching all the way down into the United States, Lake of the Woods offers vast opportunities for exploration. There are numerous parks, camping grounds and recreation sites that allow visitors to enjoy the natural beauty of the Lake of the Woods.

Kenora is the home to a thriving Métis community whose long history in the area dates back to the late 1700s and with the first fur trading post at Rat Portage, established on the current location of Kenora in 1836. “We are very proud of our Métis history in this area,” explained Provisional Council of the Métis Nation of Ontario (PCMNO) Region 1 Councilor Theresa Stenlund.

The MNO Kenora Métis Council has big plans for cultural and social events during the AGA. “We have a lot of great Métis talent living in and around Kenora,” said President Henley, “and we will be highlighting it throughout the AGA.”

More information about the 2017 AGA will be featured in future Métis Voyageurs as well as on the MNO website as it becomes available. Start planning to attend today! ☝️
